EDINBURGH: TWEEDDALE COURT

1923

Printing Statement:

Due to the very old age and scarcity of this book, many of the pages may be hard to read due to the blurring of the original text, possible missing pages, missing text, dark backgrounds and other issues beyond our control.

Because this is such an important and rare work, we believe it is best to reproduce this book regardless of its original condition.

Thank you for your understanding.

PREFATORY NOTE

THE Editorial Committee have pleasure in issuing the Fourth Volume of the Festil. More than half of their work has now been completed. But for unforeseen circumstances, progress would have been speedier. As it is, the unavoidable delay has borne good fruit otherwise, in enabling the Committee to cover a wider field of enquiry, and to expiscate a considerable number of points of biographical difficulty and obscurity.

In the first of the Synods contained in Volume Four—that of Argyll—the difficulties have been unusually great. Few of the Separate Registers have been kept with regularity, the blanks in some of the Records extending over a long period of years. In order to supply information not found in these sources, access has been obtained to the Registers and Documents within H.M. General Register House, and to a variety of papers in the possession of private individuals. Many published volumes of Local and Family History have also yielded their quota, and the literature of the tombstones has again served its own useful purpose. Pains have been taken to verify the information given, but, as was said in a former Note, the Volumes—dealing with so vast a mass of names and dates—do not claim to be immaculate. The present Volume, it is hoped, is as free from errors as is possible.

The Committee desire to express their thanks to the Clerks of the various Presbyteries, and to the Revs. James King Hewison, D.D., Rothiesay; Alexander Matthew Wyllie, Auchtergaven; William Alexander Macfarlane, Dull; Peter Robert Landreth, Perth; and William Wilson, Trossachs; and to Captain Herbert Campbell, for much assistance in the preparation of the work.

The Volume has been brought down to the eve of publication.

14th July 1922.

SYNOD OF ARGYLL

THE Synod of Argyll was erected by the General Assembly on 18th Dec. 1638. To it were then assigned the five Presbyteries of Dunoon, Kinloch, Inveraray, Kilmore, and Skye. Kinloch is now styled Campbeltown, and Kilmore we call Lorn. Skye was transferred to the Synod of Glenelg in 1724. The Synod Register of Argyll begins at 24th April 1639. There is a blank in the Record from May 1661 to 29th Sept. 1687.

PRESBYTERY OF INVERARAY

[This Court first appears on Record as the Presbytery of Argyll. It is so styled in 1694. In 1638, when the Synod of Argyll was set up, this Court is named the Presbytery of Inveraray. The Presbytery Register begins at 12th Oct. 1691. There are gaps in the Record from 14th April 1702 to 17th May 1715, from 27th Sept. 1725 to 7th Aug. 1731, and from 17th May 1763 to 27th April 1779. The Separate Register is very incomplete.]

GLASSARY.

[The church of Glassary was dedicated to St Michael. Beside it a Michaelmas fair used to be held. There were three chapels in the parish. One of them was on the west side at Kilbride. It bore the name of St Bride. Another stood at Killevin, near Crarae, on Lochfyne. It was dedicated to St Stebban, Abbot of Iona. The ruins of St Columba's Church can still be seen at Cill an Iubhair (the chapel of the Yew-tree) on Loch Awe. At Cill an Iubhair, which was once a village of some size, there was held a yearly tryst called An Margadh Dubh (the Black Fair).]

GEORGE SCOTT, perpetual vicar; coll. 17th July 1559; pres. by John Scrimgeour of Glassary.

HENRY SCRIMGEOUR, parson and vicar in 1572; sued James Scrimgeour of Glassary and Dudhope for the profits of the benefice in Oct. that year; was rector in 1610. — [Lauderdale Charter Chest; Lauderdale Papers, 392.]

ARCHIBALD McCALLUM of Pottalloch, born 1605, son of John M., min. of Knapdale; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (1627); appears for the first time as min. here at a meeting of the Synod, 21th April 1639, but was perhaps settled earlier. On 7th Oct. 1641, and again on 12th Oct. 1647, he was trans. to Campbeltown, but continued in this charge. He was app. in 1650 to assist in the translation into Gaelic of the "Shorter Catechism" and the "Brief Sum of Christian Doctrine"; and in 1659, when the Psalms were being issued in Gaelic verse, he was app. to versify those from L. to LX. He was also assigned the Second Book of Chronicles in Nov. 1660 when the Old Testament was being turned into Gaelic. He succeeded his cousin Donald in the lands of Pottalloch 14th July 1642; is mentioned as a non-conformist to Episcopacy in 1662, and had sasine of a yearly rent of £54 to himself and his wife out of the lands of Over Roudele, Baryle, and Kilbride, Dec. 1668. He died in 1685. He marr. (1) Janet, daugh. of John Boyd in Kirkdyke of Kilhuarnock, nephew of Zachary B., min. of the Barony, Glasgow, and had issue—Zachary (or Zacharias) [described as “a quick youth capable of learning,” but the “father not being able to train up his children that way he was buiried at St Andrews” in 1648, at the expense of the Synod of Fife. He does not appear to have completed his studies. In a contest with the notorious Colchiotach, the parties are said to have been equally matched, and Zachary to have been highly complimented by his adversary for courage and skill as a swordsman. Zachary was served heir to his grand-uncle, 17th Jan. 1654, and to his maternal aunt, 4th Dec. 1666. He succeeded also to Poltalloch, and died in 1692, when Poltalloch was sold by his son Archibald to his uncle Donald M., who had a confirmation of Roudele 18th March 1689, and from whom is descended the family of Malcolm of Poltalloch]; Donald; Neil; (2) Janet MacIachlan.—[*New Gen. ARCHIBALD CAMPBELL, educated 1687 at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (13th July 1671); adm. min. here about 1687; outed at the Revolution in 1689; died in 1695, aged about 44.

DANIEL [or DONALD] CAMPBELL 1691 of Duchernan, in the parish, born 1st Aug. 1665, only son of Patrick C. of Quoycrook, parish of Halkirk, Caithness (descended from the M'Iver Campbells of Lergachonzie), and Helen Bayne; educated at King's College, Aberdeen; M.A. (15th July 1686); possibly also at the Univ. of Edinburgh; called 29th Sept. [the call was signed by forty-two persons, of whom one-half were Campbells], and ord. 31st Dec. 1691. He declined a call to Watten Oct. 1699. As one of the heirs of Patrick

Campbell, min. of Glenaray, he received 200 merks from the Synod which enabled him to finish the building of a manse, erected chiefly at his own expense, one of the first manses in the county, and well known for its “nineteen windows.” He died “greatly lamented” 28th March 1722, after years of intense physical suffering. In 1719 he wrote: “I walked only with the help of two stilts, and since 14th Oct. 1716 I was so universally taken with gout in hands and feet that I never stood on my own legs since that day, nor moved a step, but as I was carried each Sabbath to preach, which I was forced to do sitting on a chair on the floor of the church, not being able to ascend the pulpit, and yet I was helped to preach each Sabbath: my hand also was unable to write. I was obliged to sit from morning to evening on my bedside, being unable to stir or walk one step.” He marr. June 1692, Jean, daugh. of Patrick Campbell of Torblaren, min. of Glenaray [as a young woman while travelling with Lady Henrietta Lindsay, wife of Sir Duncan Campbell of Auchencbreck, with great presence of mind she chewed and swallowed a letter, the discovery of which would have endangered Sir Duncan and others engaged in the troubles of 1685]. They had issue—Henrietta Lindsay, born 1693 (marr. (1) Duncan Campbell, min. of Kilmartin: (2) 1741, James Buchanan, merchant, Tarbert); Helen (marr. Patrick Pollock, min. of South Knapdale); Allan; Jean (marr. 1719, Donald M'Gilchrist, writer in Kilmichael-Glassary); James, min. of Kilbrandon; Anne (marr. 1734, John M'Alister, surgeon); Janet (marr. 1739, George Macfarlane of Glenralloch). Publications—Sacramental Meditations on the Sufferings and Death of Christ [Sermons preached before the Communion in the Irish Language in Kilmichael of Glasric] (Edinburgh, 1698; Glasgow, 1701; and frequently reprinted: an edition in Gaelic by D. Macfarlane, M.A., was published at Edinburgh in 1786, and at Perth in 1800); The Frequent and Devout Communicant, to which is appended, A Dialogue, between a private Christian and a Minister of the Gospel, concerning Preparation for the Lord's Supper (Edinburgh, 1703); Demonomachie; or, War with the Devil, in a short treatise by way of dialogue between Philander and Theophilus (Edinburgh, 1718); Meditations on the Vanity of the World: Meditations on Death (Edinburgh, 1718; Glasgow, 1741); Meditations on Judgment: Meditations on Hell (Edinburgh, 1719); Man's Chief End and Rule: the substance of Catechetical Sermons (Edinburgh, 1719); Meditations on Eternity (Edinburgh, 1721); Meditations on Heaven (Edinburgh, 1721). He left in MS. three volumes of Sermons.—[Notes and Queries, 3rd ser., vi., 27th Aug. 1861, pp. 171-2; MS. Genealogy; Edin. Christian Instructor, 4th ser., i.]

GLENARAY AND INVERARAY.

[These two parishes were united on 27th March 1745. About that time the church of Glenaray was rebuilt at Inveraray. Each parish has still its own minister and its own church, both churches being at Inveraray.]

Glenaray.—The old church of Glenaray was at Kilmalew. It was dedicated to St Malaw (Maldmubh). Within the bounds there were six chapels, St Fintan's at Kilmun, St Blaas's at Kilblau, St Bride's at Kilbride, St John's at Kilhain, and the chapels of Glen Shira and Achantiobaiot. On Loch Gair there is now a mission chapel.

Inveraray.—The parish of Inveraray was disjoined from Glenaray on 26th Dec. 1651, but was again united to it in 1745. At Inveraray there was of old a chapel of St Beaudan.]

GLENARAY

NINIAN MACVICAR, rector in 1561-3. 1561 —[Orig. Paroch. Scot., ii., 85.]

JOHN MACVICAR of Stronmaglashan, 1566 said to have been a natural son of the preceding; was educated at Rome, where he was ordained a priest. After 1560 he conformed, and became min. of his native parish about 1560, "discharging his pastoral duties with prudence, charity, and wisdom." He preached under a rock long known as the "parson's pulpit," until a church was built. He was believed to have had the gift of prophecy and to have foretold his death by drowning. This happened at Stirling, where, at an alarm of fire, he fell from an outside stair "head foremost into a dyer's hogshead which had been put to catch rain-water, and when his ghillie returned he found M. drowned in the hogshead, with his feet uppermost. His remains were brought to Inveraray, where all the inhabitants of the parish turned out and buried him at Kilmalien.—[Craven's Records of Argyll and the Isles, 15; Orig. Paroch. Scot., ii., 85.]

DONALD MACVICAR, pres. by Archibald, Earl of Argyll, in 1570; still in the charge in 1574.—[Breadalbane Charters.]

DONALD MACILVORICH or MILVORIE; educated at the Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (1593); declined a call to Aberfoyle in 1594; became min. of the Barony Parish, Glasgow, that year; trans. to Rothesay also in 1594; trans. and adm. in 1595; was a member of Assembly in 1610; a member of the Commission for the Maintenance of Church Discipline 21st Oct. 1634, and of the Glasgow Assembly in 1638; died before 9th May 1649. He marr. Ann or Janet Campbell, who was alive 9th Oct. 1655, and had issue.—Donald.—[Book of the Kirk; Orig. Paroch. Scot., ii., 85; Baillie's Letters; Calderwood's Hist., vii., 107; Reg. of Deeds, 11th Oct. 1627.]

PATRICK CAMPBELL of Torblaren, born about 1633, eldest son of Dugald C., min. of Knapdale; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (1651); had a call to Rothesay and to this parish before 9th Nov. 1656; was adm. here before 27th May 1657; deprived by Act of Parliament 11th June, and Decree of the Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662, but was allowed to remain. He was granted an Indulgence by the Privy Council 3rd Aug. 1669, but this was probably annulled on the imposition of the Test in 1681. He was arrested some time after this, but liberated on 17th March 1685 on a bond for 5000 merks, was ordered to leave the kingdom, and meantime to exercise no part of his ministry. He returned at the Toleration in 1687, and was at the meeting of the Synod that year. He died "with much peace and rejoicing" in March 1700, and is described as a "faithful minister of Christ, who continued steadfast in the times of persecution." He marr. Joan Campbell of Pennymore, widow of Major John Campbell of Glenary family, and had issue—Dugald of Torblaren and Kilmory; Duncan, merchant, Glasgow; Colin of Knockbuy; Colonel John of Blackriver, Jamaica, bapt. 13th March 1673, instrumental in many of his kinsfolk and others from Argyll settling and prospering in that island, died there 29th Jan. 1740; Elizabeth (marr., cont. 30th Sept. 1681, Colin Campbell of Ederline, sheriff-clerk of Argyll); Jean (marr. Daniel or Donald Campbell of Duchernan, min. of Glassary).—[Inveraray Council Reg.; Auch-enbreck Genealogy; Wodrow's Hist., ii., 133.]

JOHN LINDSAY, formerly of Lochgoilhead; pres. by James VII. 29th Oct. 1685, on which he received collation and institution; deprived by Act of Parliament 25th April 1690 restoring Presbyterian ministers. He renounced Episcopacy, and was received into communion by the Synod 16th Oct. 1691; adm. min. of Kilchrenan June 1692.

ALEXANDER CAMPBELL, born 1670, son of Duncan C. of the Duntroon family; educated at Univ. of Glasgow, and in the fourth class on 11th Feb. 1689; licen. by Presb. of Inveraray 21st Oct. 1691; ord. 8th May 1701; died 3rd May 1734. 1850 gow, 1644); adm. 12th Nov. 1650;
deprived by Act of Parliament 11th
June, and Decree of Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662. Wodrow says that he was suffering from a dangerous fever and very near death; he recovered, however, and continued to preach during Bishop Fletcher's period of office. After Fletcher's death G.
"fell into very great hardships and sore persecution." He was an indweller at Kilmory 7th July 1668; was granted an indulgence at Largs and officiated at Greenock. He returned at the Toleration and carried on his work here till age and
illness forced him to demit between 18th
Oct. 1699 and 5th June 1700. He retired to Glasgow, and died FATHER OF THE CHURCH 20th March 1713, aged about 89.

He was the last surviving member of

SOUTH KNAPDALE.

[This parish was disjoined from North Knapdale on 20th Feb. 1734. At Cill mo Charmaig, in Eilean Mòr, an island on the west coast of the parish, stand the remarkable ruins of two ancient churches, both dedicated to St Cormac. The older building, evidently of very early date, is of dry stone without mortar, nearly square, and about eleven feet long. Behind it, enclosed by it and entering from it, is a cave in the rock. This edifice appears to have been the early parish church of all Knapdale. The later church near it was in use for parochial worship until 1734. It has a chancel, and is nearly forty feet long. Besides these two churches of St Cormac, there are two other fine ruined chapels in South Knapdale, St Mary's at Kilmore, and St Columba's at Keils. At Keils there are a fine standing stone cross and also St Columba's Cave. A chapel of St Constantine, which stood at Kilehuslan on Loch Gilp, no longer exists. South Knapdale has two parish churches, the one at Achahoish, where the manse is, and the other at Inverneil.]

KILMUN (Q.S.).

[From a very early time there was on Loch Sánt (the Holy Loch) a church of St Fintan Munna. In due time it became the parish church of Kilmun. In 1442
Sir Duncan Campbell of Loch Awe, afterwards first Lord Campbell, granted it a collegiate foundation with the ancient dedication to St Fintan. The parishes of Dunoon and Kilmun were often held by the same incumbent even as late as the seventeenth century. From 1629 onwards
efforts were made to have the two parishes
sufficiently endowed as separate charges, but without success. Towards the end of the seventeenth century, however, a union
was carried through. It lasted till the 16th of March 1894, when Kilmun was disjoined quoad sacra from Dunoon. Kilmun had a yearly fair of St Fintan, and another fair
on Roodmas Day.]

DUNCAN CAMPBELL, had a grant of
the Provostry from James VI. in 1601 1601, and a similar grant from

KINGARTH.

[The church of Kingarth belonged to the Abbey of Paisley. For a time this parish was in the Presbytery of Irvine, but in August 1639 it was transferred to that of Dunoon. The first church here was most likely built by St Catan towards the end of the sixth century. His name survives in Kilehatan and Suidhe Chatain (Catan's Seat), both in this parish. St Blaen, a nephew of St Catan, founded the Celtic Abbey of Cill Bhlaain, whose extensive ruins are to be seen between Suidh Chatain
and Suidhe Bhlaain (Blaen's Seat). In the old churchyard of Kingarth, which is still in use, stand the ruins of an ancient Norman church. Beside it is Tobar Bhlain (Blaan's Well). Hard by, at the place called Am Margadh na h-Eaglais (the Tryst of the Church), St Blaan's Fair used to be held. In 1680 a new parish church was built on a more central site. In 1826 this latter was replaced by another new church.]

NORTH BUTE.

[In 1836 John, second Marquess of Bute, built and endowed, at a total cost of not less than £6000, a church for the northern part of Bute. On 26th June 1844 the parish of North Bute was disjoined from Rothesay quoad omnia. At Kilmichael in North Bute there is a ruined chapel of St Michael. At Kilmorie are the ruins of St Mary's Chapel. At St Ninian's Point are the foundations of the small chapel of St Ninian with St Ninian's Well near it. At Kildavannan on the hill of Cnocdavannan stood the remains of St Adamnan's Chapel. At Cruisklan there are the foundations of a chapel. At Cill Cholmoig, a standing stone inscribed with a cross (swastika) remains to indicate the site of the chapel of St Colmog. On the island of Inchmarnoch there was a chapel of St Marnoch, which belonged to the priory of Saddell. It has disappeared, but richly carved stones have been found in the ancient churchyard. At Kilbride in Glenmòr there stood a chapel of St Bride, and at Kilchiarain was one dedicated to St Kieran. St Breandan was held in high honour in Bute; but his name is now kept in mind mainly by the name of Kilbrannan Sound. A church dedicated to St Ninian was built at Port Bannatyne in 1886.]

ROTHESAY.

[The rectory of Rothesay belonged to the Abbey of Kilwinning. In early times its church was dedicated to St Brioch. A later church, built probably as early as the thirteenth century, bore the name of St Mary. Under episcopal rule in the seventeenth century, this church of St Mary at Rothesay was the cathedral of the diocese of the Isles. In 1692 Rothesay Church was rebuilt mainly on its old site. The chancel was retained, but the rest of the building was taken down and rebuilt. In 1795 the church was again rebuilt. This time the plan of the edifice was so altered that the old chancel was left standing close to the new church. There its ruins still remain. This chapel is thirty-three feet long and twenty-two feet broad externally, and contains several finely sculptured effigies of early date. The parish church was renovated in 1906.

Besides the parish church, Rothesay had a chapel of St Mary. On St Bride's Hill also, within the burgh, there was a chapel of St Bride. In Rothesay Castle there was a chapel of St Michael, whose ruins survive. There were also in pre-Reformation times chapels dedicated to Saints Ciaran, Finan, Colman, Columba, Constantine, Machan, and Mary, and the remains of several of these are visible with holy wells close by their sites.

Until recent times Rothesay continued to hold a fair in honour of its patron, St Brioch.

There is in the town a mission chapel for Gaelic services. It was built in 1836.]

CAMPBELTOWN or KIL- CHIARAN, KILCHUSLAN, KILMICHAEL, AND KIL- CHIEVAN.

[The three parishes of Kilchiaran, Kilchuslan, and Kilmichael in Kintyre were united in 1617. To this union Kilchievan was added in 1671.

Kilchiaran.—In the sixth century, St Kiaran came from Ireland as a Christian missionary to the people of Kintyre. A cavern on the sea-shore of this parish, called Uamh Chiarain (Kiaran's Cave), is pointed out as having served him for a temporary dwelling. In after times it was in use as a hermitage. The adjoining bay was termed Loch Chiarain, and several other places within the bounds, including a holy well, bear the saint's name. A church, standing of old on the side of the loch, was dedicated to St Kieran. Of it but scanty traces are now left in the ancient churchyard. Kilchiaran was a prebend of Lismore, and belonged to the Abbey of Paisley. In 1662, a new church for the parish was built at Dalruadhan, further up the loch. From its site, this place came to be styled Ceann Loch Chiarain (the End of Loch Chiarain), and often merely Kinloch. At times we find both church and parish called Loch Head. The name Dalruadhan (Ruadhan's Field) seems to imply a commemoration of St Ruadhan of Lorrha in Ormonde, an early friend and comrade of St Kieran. The township appears to have been first named Campbeltown in 1672, but the parish continued to be styled Kilchiaran until 1700. In that year King William granted a charter, making the place a royal burgh, and calling it Campbeltown. A building in the town, which was once the parish church, and is now used for mission services, is styled Kinloch Chapel. Fairs used to be held in Campbeltown, at Lammas and Michaelmas.

During the troubled times of the seventeenth century, many refugees from the western Lowlands found shelter in this part of Kintyre, under the protection of the Marquess of Argyll. Not knowing Gaelic, they could not join in the worship of the parish churches. Therefore, in 1638, a chapel was built for them at Kilchiaran, and a Lowland congregation was formed there. In 1655 the Presb. made this Lowland chapel a separate Charge. On 23rd Nov. 1757, the Lowland Charge was merged in the parish of Campbeltown. Hence it comes that the burgh has two parish churches under one kirk-session. The Gaelic services are conducted by the minister of the First Charge in the large church. The smaller church belongs to the Lowland Charge, and in it only English services are held. Both buildings are kept up by the heritors.

Kilchuslan.—The ancient church of Kilchuslan, a building about sixty feet long with a chancel, now stands ruined in its old churchyard near the shore. It was dedicated to St Constantine the Martyr.

Kilmichael in Kintyre.—The church of Kilmichael was a prebend of Lismore. It was dedicated to St Michael.

Kilchievan.—The ruins of the ancient church of Kilchievan, a building over fifty feet in length, are still standing. It was dedicated to St Caomhghan (Kevin) of Glendalough. In 1617 the parish of Kilchievan was united to Kilcholumkill and Kilblaen. In 1671 that union was dissolved, and Kilchievan was then joined to Kilchiaran, Kilchuslan, and Kilmichael.]

FIRST CHARGE.

DUNCAN M'CALMAN, min. at Kilchiaran Nov. 1631, when the teinds were valued; still in the charge in 1637.

GIGHA AND CARA.

[The ancient church of Gigha was dedicated to St Catan. It now stands in the old churchyard, roofless and weatherworn, overlooking from its high ground the Bay of Ardminish on the east side of the island. The parish of Gigha was united to Jura in the sixteenth century. In 1641 it was severed from Jura and joined to Saddell. In 1659 it was disjoined from Saddell and united to Killean. On 22nd Jan. 1726 the Commissioners of Teinds severed Gigha from Killean, making it, as of old, a separate parish. The island of Cara is in this parish. On it there is an old ruined chapel of rude masonry, some thirty feet long, with its gables nearly whole.]

he, in company with others, seized
at Lamash a boat which was laden contrary to the Proclamation forbidding the importation of Irish victual, and took possession of it. The crew having recovered the boat, set sail and were pursued in another boat by B. and an armed party, who, on their refusing to surrender, fired and killed Allan Gardiner, merchant, Irvine. For this offence B. was tried before the High Court of Justiciary at Edinburgh, and sentenced to be hanged. This sentence was remitted by the King, and on his way home B. solicited the Town Council of Rothesay for aid, and asked to be allowed to beg. They granted him £20 Scots, but refused the latter request. He marr. 29th

KILLEAN, KILCHENZIE, AND KILMALRUBH.

[The parishes of Kilchenzie and Kilmalrubb were united before 1560. To this union Killean was added in 1636. There are still parish churches in both Killean
and Kilchenzie.

Killean.—The ancient ruined church of Killean is one of the finest examples of an early Highland church with a chancel. It was dedicated to St John the Evangelist,
and belonged to the Abbey of Paisley.
There were chapels in the parish at Kilmorie
and Tayanloan.

Kilchenzie. The church of Kilchenzie was dedicated to St Kenneth. It belonged to the Abbey of Iona. A good deal of tradition has come down regarding a small early Celtic monastery at Glenbarr in this parish. There are not now any remains of buildings to mark its site. Within the bounds there is a mission chapel at Beallaebhantuaic.

Kilmalrubb.—The church of this parish
was dedicated to St Malrubb.]

MURDOCH McWHIRRIE, was a 1629 student at Univ. of Glasgow in 1618,

SADDELL.

[On 11th March 1753 the Court of Teinds disjoined from the parish of Killeen the district of Saddell, and from the adjoining parish of Kilmalmonell that of Skipness. The Court then erected the two districts thus disjoined into the new parish of Saddell. Each of these districts had its own church, and the parish was therefore commonly styled Saddell and Skipness. In 1870 Skipness was taken from Saddell, and made a separate parish. The parish of Saddell contains the ruins of St Mary's Cistercian Abbey of Saddell, founded about 1150 by Ranald of the Isles, second son of the great Somerled. There was of old, within the bounds, a well of St Andrew, and at Kilnichael in Carradale there stood a chapel of St Michael. There are now mission chapels at Carradale and Grogport.]

SOUTHEND, OR KILCHOLUMKILL AND KILBLAAN.

[In 1617 a Commission of Parliament united the three parishes of Kilcholumkill, Kilblaen, and Kilchievan, which together make up the south end of Kintyre. In 1671 Kilchievan was severed from this union, and was joined to Kilchiaran, Kilchuslan, and Kilmichael. Since then the two united parishes of Kilcholumkill and Kilblaen have been commonly known as Southend.

Kilcholumkill.—The ancient church of Kilcholumkill, of which the ruins still stand, was dedicated to St Columba. It belonged to the priory of Whitern. At Glenadal within the bounds there was a chapel of St Katherine, with St Katherine's Well near it.

Kilblaen.—The church of Kilblaen belonged to the priory of Whitern. It was dedicated to St Blaen.]

PRESBYTERY OF ISLAY AND JURA

[The General Assembly severed this Presbytery from Kintyre, and erected it as a separate Court, on 20th May 1836. Bowmore was appointed to be its ordinary place of meeting. The Presbytery Register begins at 20th July 1836.]

COLONSAY.

[The parish of Colonsay was disjoined quoad omnia from Jura on 27th Feb. 1861. A Priory of St Oran was founded on the island of Colonsay in the time of St Columba. The Well, called Tobar Odhruin (St Oran's Well), is, perhaps, the only trace of it now left. There were also of old in Colonsay, chapels of St Catan, St Kenneth, and St Mary. On the island of Oronsay there remain extensive ruins of the Augustinian Priory of St Columba, founded about 1350 by John, Lord of the Isles. Its church has been nearly 100 feet in length. Before the west end of this ancient church stands a stone cross, about 12 feet high, elaborately carved.]

JURA, OR KILEARNADAIL.

[Until modern times this parish was of vast extent, including also many islands, of which nine were inhabited. Among these, besides Jura and Scarba, were Lunga, the Garvelach Isles, Colonsay, Oronsay, Gigha, and Cara. To get over the difficulty of working so wide a field, the Presb. of Kintyre, on 27th Oct. 1702, directed that "the minister shall preach six months and a half in Jura, and five and a half months at Colonsay, yearly." The parish of Gigha was taken off in 1726, and that of Colonsay in 1861. The church of Jura at Kilearnadail was dedicated to St Kieran. On Eileach Naomh, one of the Clayclash Isles, a monastery was founded by St Columba. Its ruins are the best example we have of the primitive beehive architecture of our early Christian times. Near them is shown Tobar Cholameille (St Columba's Well), and not far off is St Eithne's Grave, held in honour as the burial-place of St Columba's mother. At Kilmorie, in Scarba, there was a chapel of St Mary. In Lunga were St Columba's Chapel and Holy Well. In Jura itself there were chapels of St Catan and St Mary.]

KILARROW.

[The church of this parish was dedicated to St Malrubh. In 1618 the parishes of Kilarrow and Kilchoman were united.
They were disjoined again on 22nd Feb.
1769. In or about that year also the parish church was removed from Kilarrow to Bow-
more. In the old ruined church at Kilarrow lie a good many carved stones and mural
monuments. At Laggan in this parish stand the ruins of a chapel of St Columba. There were formerly three other chapels within
the bounds, at Cill an Ailean, Cill Bileagun, and Corsapol. There is now a mission
chapel at Muileandrie (Moulin-dry).]

KILCHOMAN.

[The church of this parish was dedicated to St Comman of Tyreconnel. In 1618 Kilchoman was united to Kilarrow, but their union was dissolved in 1769. In the old ruined church at Kilchoman lie fine monuments and other ancient carved work. At the west end, outside the church, there is a stately standing cross, carved on both sides and bearing an inscription. Within the church are fragments of other monumental crosses. At the north end of the parish are Eilean Naomh (the Holy Isle) and Aird Naomh (the Holy Headland). On Eilean Naomh there was from a very early time a small monastery. A ruined chapel still survives. Near that, on the mainland of Islay, is the ruined chapel of Cill Naomh. At its west end there stands outside a high stone cross carved in very fine style, but on one side only. At the same place are various other stone carvings. At Cill Chiarain, in St Kieran's ruined chapel, lie a broken font and other fine stone-work. Other ancient chapels stood at Gruinard and Cill Bonain, and at Bruachladaich in the old burial-ground beside the road to Conisby.]

PATRICK MACLACHLAN, M.A.;

KILDALTON.

[The church of Kildalton was dedicated to St John the Evangelist, called in the early Gaelic Church "Ian Daltan" (John the Foster-brother). The parishes of Kildalton and Kilnachtan or Oa were united before the sixteenth century. On 30th May 1849 their union was dissolved by the erection of the Oa again as a parish quoad sacra. About the same time the church of this parish was removed from Kildalton to Lagamhuillin. In the churchyard at Kildalton the very interesting ancient church, a building about sixty feet long, now stands roofless. Before its west end, there stands among the tombstones a stone cross about nine feet high very richly carved. A little way off, outside the churchyard, is another standing cross about twelve feet high. Within the church are fine monumental figures and other carved stone-work.

At Kilchuban, in the north of this parish, is the ruined chapel of St Caomhan of Glendalough. It is about thirty-five feet long, rudely built of dry stone without mortar. Near it is Tobar Chubain (St Caomhan's Well). At Kilcholumkill there is a Well of St Columba. There was once a chapel of the saint there, but his Well alone remains now. At Kilbride there is still a ruined chapel of St Bride. There used to be a standing cross beside it, but that was in danger of falling, and was therefore removed to another site some years ago. At Kill Lasrach is St Lasrach's ruined chapel, with St Lasrach's Well hard by. On the island of Texa there is an interesting ruin of a chapel about thirty feet long. A good many finely sculptured stones have been found there.

At Port-Ellen there is a mission chapel.]

KILMENY (Q.S.).

[The parish of Kilmeny was united to Kilarrow before 1550. Early in the nineteenth century a parliamentary church was built to take the place of the ancient ruined church of Kilmeny. On 13th May 1849 Kilmeny was disjoined quoad sacra from Kilarrow. In the old ruined church are still to be seen a number of carved stones, some of them monumental. There are also fine mural remains in the ruined chapel of St Columba at Kileholunkill. Not far from that, at Cill Sleibhin, are the remains of a chapel dedicated to St Sleavan, Abbot of Iona. At Cill Ghilleagan, too, there was a chapel, and at Cill Bhreanan there was one dedicated to St Breandan. On Loch Finlagan, an inland sheet of water, are the interesting ruins of a chapel of St Finlagan of Tallaght, with fine stone monuments.

In this parish there are mission chapels at Bunnahavain and Caol Ila.]

THE OA, OF OLD KILNACHTAN (Q.S.).

[Islay was long a stronghold of the Norse dominion in the West, and many places there still bear Norse names. But the churches and chapels were almost all called by Gaelic names. The modern name of this parish is a notable exception. The rocky, wind-swept, half-insular headland which forms nearly the whole parish, is always styled by Islay people in Gaelic An O, or in English the Oa. In this name we have a survival of the old Norse term ø, meaning an island. The ancient ecclesiastical name of the parish is Kilnachten, so called from its patron, St Neachten, the Pictish king.

Somewhere about 1830, a parliamentary church was built in the southern part of the Oa, to take the place of Kilnachten Church, which had become ruinous. On 30th May 1849 the parish of the Oa was disjoined quoad sacra from Kildalton. At the head of Kilnachten Bay, half-buried by the drifted sand of the shore, the old church now stands roofless. It is some forty feet long, and evidently of early date. There are fine old monumental figures within it and ancient stone carvings. At Cill Chatain in this parish there is a chapel of St Catan, and at Cill Chomhain is one dedicated to St Coan. Both are now much ruined. There was formerly another chapel at Toemal.]

PORTNAHAVEN (Q.S.).

[In or about the year 1830 a parliamentary chapel was built here. On 30th
May 1849 the parish of Portnahaven was disjoined from Kilchoman. On the island called Eilean Odhorsa in this parish is a ruined chapel about sixty-five feet long.
At Nereabolls there was formerly another chapel. Near where it stood are three separate burial-grounds lying close together.
Within them are ancient monumental figures, fragments of crosses, and carved stone-work of the olden time.]

PRESBYTERY OF LORN, CALLED OF OLD KILMORE

[The General Assembly erected the Presbytery of Kilmore on 8th Dec. 1638. In 1689 the Presbyteries of Inveraray and Kilmore were united. In May 1704, however, they were severed again. The Presbytery Register begins at 14th May 1651. There are gaps in the record from 11th April 1661 to 31st Oct. 1666, from 30th Nov. 1681 to 5th July 1704, from 3rd Aug. to 14th Nov. 1711, from 8th Dec. 1714 to 7th July 1729, and from 12th Feb. 1800 to 24th Nov. 1829. The gap between 1681 and 1704 is due, at least in the main, to this Court being at that time merged in the Presbytery of Inveraray. From 6th May 1806 to 6th Aug. 1829 the minutes are written in scroll merely, and are defective. The ordinary meetings of Presbytery are now held at Oban. The Separate Register is incomplete.]

APPIN (Q.S.).

[The parish of Appin was first disjoined from Lismore in or about the year 1650. Like a good many other parochial erections made by the Commissioners of Teinds, this one fell under the sweeping revocation of the Act of Parliament of 9th Feb. 1661, known as the Act Rescissory. The effect was to join Appin again to Lismore. On 15th May 1868 the parish of Appin was disjoined a second time, and was of new erected as a parish quoad sacra. The present church was built in 1889. There was of old a chapel of St Patrick within the bounds, on Loch Creran. There is now a mission chapel in Glencreran.]

ARDCHATTAN, OR BAILE MHAODAIN.

[The ancient church of this parish was dedicated to St Modan. Hence comes its name of Baile Mhaodain (St Modan's township). In 1231 Duncan MacDougall of Lorn founded, near the parish church of St Modan, a priory of the order of Val de Choux, dedicated to St Catan. This monastery gave to the parish its modern name of Ardochattan (St Catan's Height). Near the church was St Modan's Well, and hard by St Modan's Fair was held. In 1618 the parishes of Ardochattan and Muckairn were united. They were severed again in 1649. The Act Rescissory of 1661 repealed their disjunction, and Muckairn was thus annexed a second time to Ardochattan. It was, however, disjoined again quoad sacra on 9th December 1846. At Kikholunkill in this parish, on the north shore of Loch Etive, there was a chapel of St Columba. At Benderloch there is now a mission chapel of St Modan.]

DUROR (Q.S.).

[At Kilcholunkill in Glen Duror there was of old a chapel of St Columba. In 1650, or very near that time, the Commissioners of Teinds disjoined this district from Lismore, and erected the new parish of Duror. In 1661, by passing the Act Rescissory, Parliament annulled this and other proceedings of the Commissioners. Thus the erection of the new parish was set aside, and Duror was united again to Lismore, as were at the same time Eilean Munda and Appin. This state of things lasted for nearly 200 years. Early in the nineteenth century a parliamentary chapel was built here. On 9th Dec. 1846, the parish of Duror was again disjoined quoad sacra from Lismore.]

GLENCOE, OR EILEAN MUNDA (Q.S.).

[The island of Eilean Munda lies in Loch Leven near the place where the River Coe falls into the loch. On the island are the ruins of the ancient church of this parish. It was dedicated to St Fintan Munu, after whom the place is named. Early in the sixteenth century the parishes of Lismore and Eilean Munda were already united. In or about 1650 the Commissioners of Teinds disjoined Eilean Munda from Lismore, making it again a separate parish. About that time, too, the church on the island was restored and enlarged. It is now a ruin, about fifty feet long. By the Act Rescissory, passed in 1661, Parliament rendered void the erection of Eilean Munda, along with those of the neighbouring parishes of Duror and Appin. Thus all three were again attached to Lismore.

Sometime early in the nineteenth century a new church for the district was built on the mainland near the mouth of Glencoe. To it also was given the name of St Fintan Munu. Thenceforth services were again held regularly, and, on 14th July 1890, the parish of Glencoe or Eilean Munda was once more disjoined quoad sacra from Lismore. There is now a mission chapel within the bounds at Kinlochleven.]

GLENORCHY AND INISHAIL.

[These two parishes were united in 1618, but were severed again in 1650. This new erection of Inishail, however, fell under the general revocation of Church procedure contained in the Act Rescissory passed by Parliament in 1661. Thus the two parishes were joined again. Until 1668 they formed part of the Presb. of Inveraray, but in that year the united parishes were transferred to the Presb. of Cowal, now called Dunoon. On 12th May 1729 the united parishes of Glenorchy and Inishail were annexed to the Presb. of Lorn. Each of the parishes continues to have its own church.]

Glenorchy or Clachan an Diseairt.—St Conan's Mission to the Piets had its seat at Dalmally in Glenorchy. When the saint died, they buried him on the island of Inis Chonain in the River Orchy. There the remains of the ancient church of St Conan are still to be seen. To view his relics shown in it, and to visit St Conan's Well at Dalmally, pilgrims were wont to come from far and near. The Diseairt, or Hermitage, to which St Conan retired, gave the place the name of Clachan an Diseairt (the Village of the Hermitage). The parish church has been rebuilt at Dalmally on the mainland. Glenorchy had two fairs, St Conan's and St Andrew's. There is now a mission chapel of St Conan on Loch Awe.

Inishail.—The church of Inishail was dedicated to St Findoch. This seems to be St Findeach of Ath Duiru in Ossory, but there was also a female saint called Findocha. The church belonged to the Abbey of Inchaffrey. The ancient building, now ruined, stands on an island in Loch Awe. The island contained also a Cistercian Nunnery of St Findoch, but of it there are now but scanty remains. The church of Inishail has been rebuilt upon the mainland.]

KILBRANDON AND KILCHATTAN.

[These two parishes were united in the seventeenth century. Each of them has its own separate church.]

Kilbrandon.—This maritime parish is made up of Seil, Fasdale, and several smaller islands, with a pretty large share of the adjacent mainland. Its church, built upon Seil, was appropriately dedicated to St Brendan the Voyager. There were two chapels within the bounds, St Bride's at Kilbride in Seil, and St Coan's at Kilchoan on the mainland.

Kilchattan.—The insular parish of Kilchattan consists of Luing, Shuna, Torsay, and various smaller islands. Its church is on Luing, and was dedicated to St Catan.]

KILCHRENAN AND DALAVICH.

[The passing of the Act Rescissory in 1661
caused the union of these two parishes.
Each of them still retains its own church.
Until 1729 the united parishes were in the Presb. of Inveraray, but, on the 12th of May in that year, they were transferred to the Presb. of Lorn.]

Kilchrenan or Kildachanan.—The church
of Kilchrenan belonged to the Abbey of Paisley. Of old it was dedicated to the Irish Saint Chreathanan. This, however,
was superseded by a late dedication to St Peter the Deacon, a martyr of Antioch.
When Kilchrenan had come under the rule of the Abbot of Paisley, it acquired the additional name of Kildachanan (the Church of the Canons). This, indeed, was not an accurate style, for the monks of Paisley were not Canons Regular but Cluniacs. In the chapter of the Diocese of Argyll, Kilchrenan formed the prebend of the Dean. There was a chapel within the bounds at Annat.

Dalavich.—The parish of Dalavich gets its name (Dail an Amhaich=the Field of the Neck) from the site of its old church
upon the narrow neck of land between Loch Awe and Loch Avich. So far as can be made out, it was in 1649 or 1650 that Dalavich was disjoined from Kilchrenan.
The Act Rescissory annulled its erection in 1661, and then these two parishes were united again.]

NEIL MALCOLM [or MALCOLM-SON] was rector in 1570; still in 1570 charge in 1574. He marr. Finguell,

KILMORE AND KILBRIDE.

[These two parishes were united before 1636. Each of them has still its own separate church.]

Kilmore.—This parish was a rectory of old. Why it was called Cill Mhòr (the Great Church) does not now appear. The ecclesiastical court of the district, when first set up in 1638, was named the Presb. of Kilmore, and for a long time its ordinary place of meeting was in this parish.

Kilbride.—The church of this parish was dedicated to St Bride. It belonged to the Abbey of Kilwinning. It was a mensal church of the Bishop of Argyll.]

It is said that during the whole period of his life he was never a day confined by sickness. A Manuscript Diary of his father gives some curious particulars as to M.'s settlement here. The living is spoken of as one of the "best in the county," though the stipend was barely above £70. "This was competed for by several ministers of figure, standing, and with strong connections in that county, but the application in favour of my poor lad prevailed, and much of his success under God was owing to the regard for his sister Flora." He was a well-informed writer on Scottish Music and a player on various instruments. He marr. 28th Dec. 1757, Barbara (died 13th June 1804), daugh. of Alexander Macdonald of Keppoch; she was a Roman Catholic and attended neither public nor family worship with her husband. LISMORE, OR KILMALUAG.

[This parish is made up of the island of Lismore and the smaller islands adjoining it. When the Act Rescissory was passed in 1661 it united the parishes of Appin, Duror, and Glencoe or Eilean Munda, to Lismore, from which they had at first been taken. At various times they have all now been severed again. St Luag, often called Mo Luag, had the seat of his mission at Lismore. He died in the year 592. To him the ancient church of this parish at Kilmaluag was dedicated. In Lismore stood also the cathedral of the diocese of Argyll, which still exists, though ruined in part. It too was dedicated to St Luag. The see of Argyll was founded in 1200 at the instance of John Scott, Bishop of Dunkeld, known as St John of Dunkeld. The good bishop, finding himself unequal to the oversight of his huge, unwieldy diocese, obtained from the Pope the separation of its more distant, western parts. The building of the cathedral at Lismore does not appear to have been begun until 1236. It was 137 feet in length. Like other churches of large size, it fell much into decay during the troubled times of the seventeenth century. In 1749 its choir was restored to form the church of the parish instead of the small ancient building at Kilmaluag. It is still in parochial use, and is fifty feet long without aisles. The other parts of the cathedral are now much ruined. The Dean of Argyll was in old times rector of Lismore. The Bishop of Argyll resided on the island, at the Castle of Achanduin, of which there are still considerable remains. There were three chapels on Lismore, St Kieran's at Cill Chiarain, St John's at Cill Iain, and St Andrews at Cill Anriais. Another place of devout resort still keeps the name of Ach na Croise (the Field of the Cross). On the adjacent island of Bernera stand the remains of another chapel.]

MUCKAIRN, or CHILLEASBUIG EARAILD (Q.S.).

[A church was first built at Muckairn early in the thirteenth century, by Harald, first Bishop of Argyll. Hence it was called Chilleshuid's Earaild (Bishop Harald's Church). It became a monast church of the Bishop of Argyll. In 1618 the parishes of Ardehatten and Muckairn were united. They were severed again in 1649, but in 1661 the Act Rescissory repeated their disjunction, and Muckairn was again joined to Ardehatten. In 1829 a parliamentary church was built for this district, and on 9th Dec. 1846 the parish of Muckairn was again disjoined quoad sacra from Ardehatten. There were of old two chapels within the bounds, St Roman's at Kilmaraonaig and St Mary's at Kilvorie.]

PRESBYTERY OF MULL

[Donald Munro, Dean of Lismore, writing in 1549, tells us that there were then seven parishes in Mull. Among the seven he counts the two island parishes of Iona and Ulva, along with the five parochial charges of Kilminian, Kilmore, Torosay, Kilfinichen, and Kilviechoan on the mainland of Mull. In 1626, however, Thomas Knox, Bishop of the Isles, reported that the whole of Mull, with the lesser islands about it, was at that time administered as if one parish under the care of three ministers. The three were Ewan MacLean, parson of Killean or Torosay, John Campbell, and Ninian MacMillan. Until 1726 all these parishes formed part of the Presbytery of Lorn. On the 12th of May in that year the General Assembly erected the Presbytery of Mull, and fixed its seat at Ares. The Presbytery Register begins 9th Aug. 1729. There is a gap in the record from Sept. 1735 to 19th April 1737. This is due to an outbreak of fire at Strontian, where the Presbytery Clerk resided. This part of the Register was burned along with the house. Another gap reaches from 28th April 1741 to 7th March 1744. The ordinary meetings of Presbytery are now held at Salen during the winter months, and at Tobermory in summer.]

ACHARACAL, OR ACHARACLE (Q.S.).

 1624 Argyll, "having special care to have kirks plantit with learned and godlie men of good lyffe and conversation, for this effect plantit and placed the said Mr Donald, who is ane learned, modest, and good teacher." The Bishop hoped that the adjacent chief would have respected him, but on a Sunday while O. was preaching, "thair cam a young man into the kirk in the middle of the preatching, armed with a sword, a targe, and a hagbuit, and verie rudlie, with an awful and fierce countenance, addreist himself to the minister, handing a letter from the chieftain of Clanranald intimating that the minister sould with all convenient diligence reteirr himself from those boundes, and have him hame, utherwayes it sould coast him his lyffe." O. therefore "was constraynd for the sautie of his lyffe instantlie to go away."—[Reg. Sec. Sig., xiii., 427; Craven's Records of Argyll and the Isles, 79.]

DUNCAN MC'ALMAN, was min. of 1629 Kilchoan and Eilean Finain when the teinds were valued 16th and 17th Aug. 1620. It is said that when he came to the parish his congregation consisted entirely of his own household and the beadle, and this too when at the end of the church there was congregated a crowd to "putt the stane." Suiting himself to the circumstances, he took the opportunity of joining in their favourite pastime, and being a strongly built powerful man, he soon matched the best of them. By this expedient he secured their interest, gained their affection, and in course of time filled his church. He was dep. in 1644 for complicity with the notorious Alasdair Macdonald, young Colcliotach, and was excommunicated 1st May 1650, but this sentence was removed by the Presb. after 10th July 1672, and he was restored to his parish. He probably died shortly afterwards.—[Teinds Valuation Reports; Edinburgh Christ. Instructor, 4th ser.]

MARTIN M'ILVRA, M.A., min. of Iona; called min. here in 1650; adm. to 1650 Kilninian and Kilmore before 1st May 1650.

DONALD MORISON [or MELVORIE], 1669 M.A., formerly min. of Strachur;
granted an indulgence here by Privy Council 2nd Sept. 1669, and was still in the charge 5th Nov. 1671.—[Brown's Hist. of Indulgences.]

ALEXANDER MACDONALD, fourth 1627 son of Angus Og M. of Milton and Mary Maclean of Boreray; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (16th July 1674); adm. about 1687; deprived for non-jurancy 26th Oct. 1697, but continued
to minister to the Protestants of Eilean
Finain till his death at Dalelea, Loch Shiel, 25th May 1721. He has been described "as a man of candour, ingenuity,
and conscience," and like his predecessor
McAlman, possessed great physical strength
and endurance, and is still remembered in the Highlands under the name of Maighistir Alasdair. He marr. a Mervyn lady of the name of MacLachlan, and had issue—Angus,
captain in the Clanranald Regiment in 1745;
Alexander, a celebrated Gaelic poet as Alasdair Mac Maighistir Alasdair, educated at Univ. of Glasgow, schoolmaster and elder
in the parish, he adopted Roman Catholicism, was an officer in Highland Army in 1745, and after Culloden became land-steward to Clanranald in the Isle of Canna
and farmed Eigneig in Glenmig, died at Sandaig, Arisaig, about 1770, and was buried at Kilinboree; Lachlan, tacksman of Gerrihellie and Dremisdale, South Uist;
James, tacksman of Gerrihellie; Margaret

JOHN PATIENCE, a native of Ross-shire, born about 1771; educated at King's College and Univ. of Aberdeen; M.A. (30th March 1791); licen. by Presb. of Mull 26th Aug. 1796; ord. missionary at Strontian in 1797; adm. to Oban Chapel Oct. 1803; pres. by John, Duke of Argyll, 19th Oct. 1803; trans. and adm. 29th March 1804 (two ministers only being present); died unmarr. 16th Jan. 1827.

ANGUS McLAINÉ of Fascalale, Ardrishaig, born Mull, about 1799, second son of Alan M., of the Scallasdale branch of the Lochbuie family; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; licen. by Presb. of Mull 5th May 1823; ord. to Lowland Charge, Inveraray, 12th May 1824; pres. by George William, Duke of Argyll; trans. and adm. 21st Sept. 1827. About 1839 he fell into bad health and desired to demit office, but the Presb., unwilling to lose his services, granted him eighteen months' leave of absence in order to make a visit to Australia. On a petition by Sir James Riddell, the General Assembly referred the matter to the Commission, who, on 4th June 1840, disapproved of the Presbytery's action and cited them to appear for censure at the bar of the Commission on 13th Aug., at the same time citing M. to appear before next Assembly, with certification that if he failed to appear, "he shall be holden, in the event of the leave being rescinded or his not returning previously, as having deserted his charge." Nine members of Presbytery appeared, when after an explanatory speech by the Moderator, John Macleod, min. of Morven, the Commission found that there was no ground for censure, and expressed its earnest hope that M. might return in restored health and strength before the Assembly met. He, however, dem. both his charge and his status as a min., which was accepted by the Assembly 31st May 1841. He returned home and resided at Fascalale until his death, 20th Dec. 1877. He was unmarr. COLL.

[The church of Coll was dedicated to St Finan. On 31st July 1618 the parishes of Kirkapoll and Sorobie in Tiree and that of Coll were united. Early in the nineteenth century a parliamentary chapel was built in Coll. On 15th March 1865 the parish of Coll was disjoined quoad omnia
from Kirkapoll and Sorobie. There were of old two chapels in Coll, St Bride's at Cill Bride and St Kenneth's at Cill
Choinnich.]

HEW [or EWEN] McLEAN, M.A.; 1821 adm. before 1621. Bishop Knox, reporting on his diocese, wrote, "This
yle is servit yeirle by Mr Hew McClean."
He was afterwards min. of Killeen (Torosay)
in 1626, and of Iona about 1630.

HECTOR MACLEAN, M.A., born 1696,
1733 son of Ewen M. of Treshnish; app.
Gaelic Bursar of Synod of Fife, 26th
Sept. 1728, to serve in the Highlands; ord.
(at Tayinloan) 14th May 1733; died 10th April 1775. He marr. 22nd June 1743, Janet (died at Coll, 2nd Aug. 1791), daugh. of

had issue—Margaret, born 22nd May 1745,
died young; Florence, born 15th Oct.
1747 (marr. Captain Lachlan Maclean of the Coll family); Allan, an officer in the army, born 23rd April 1751, died at sea, coming from New York; Margaret, born 28th July 1752 (marr. Alexander Maclean of Mingary). Describing his visit to Coll in 1773, Dr Samuel Johnson wrote: "We called on Mr Hector Maclean, the minister of Coll, whom we found in a hut, that is, a house of only one floor, but with windows and chimney, and not inelegantly furnished. Mr M. has the reputation for great learning; he is seventy-seven years old, but not infirm, with a look of venerable dignity exceeding what I remember in any other man. His conversation was not unsuitable to his appearance. I lost some of his goodwill by treating a heretical writer with more regard than, in his opinion, a heretic could deserve. I honoured his orthodoxy, and did not much censure his asperity. A man who has settled his opinions does not love to have the tranquillity of his conviction disturbed; and at seventy-seven it is time to be in earnest. . . . He has no public edifice for the exercise of his ministry, and can officiate to no greater number than a room can contain, and the room of a hut is not very large. This is all the opportunity of worship that is now granted to the inhabitants of the islands, some of whom must travel thither perhaps ten miles. Two chapels were erected by their ancestors, of which I saw the skeletons, which now stand faithful witnesses of the triumph of the Reformation." — [Clan Gillean, 331: A Journey to the Western Isles.]

HEYLIPOL, or SOROBIE (Q.S.).

[Tirree was divided of old between two parishes. Of these, Kirkapol included all the north-eastern part of the island, while the south-west formed the parish of Sorobie. On 31st July 1618 the three parishes of Kirkapol, Sorobie, and Coll were united. During the nineteenth century a chapel for the southern part of Tirree was built at Heylipol, a more accessible site than Sorobie. On 15th Feb. 1875 the parish of Heylipol, or Sorobie, was severed again from Kirkapol. There were within the bounds of Sorobie two chapels, St Kenneth's at Cill Choinnich, and St Luag's at Cill Mo Luag. Ruins of both still exist. There are now mission chapels at Cornaig and Balevullin.]

ICHOLUMKILL, or IONA (Q.S.).

[In the year 563 St Columba came to this island, then called I or Hi, and here he founded his monastery. In later times Icholumkill formed a parish, with its church dedicated to St Ronan. Of that building the traces are now but scanty. Early in the seventeenth century the three parishes of Kilfinichen, Kilviehean, and Icholumkill were united. In 1828 a parliamentary chapel was built in Iona. On 11th June 1845 the parish of Iona or Icholumkill was again disjoined from Kilfinichen and Kilviehean. In the parish thus erected of new is included, along with the island of Icholumkill, the Ross of Mull, a considerable part of the mainland of that large island.

Besides the ancient parish church, still known as Teampull Ronain, there were in Iona various other church buildings, most of which are now ruined. Oldest of these is the very early Norman church of Teampull Odhrain, a roofless structure about 40 feet long. In its old-world churchyard, the Relig Odhrain, lie unnumbered generations of the great and the faithful. A space by itself contains the tombs of the kings, in which are buried forty-eight kings, Pictish and Scottish, who reigned in ancient Alban. Beside them are laid four Irish kings and eight of those Norse princes, all more or less vassals of the kings of Norway, who, ruling in our western shires, laid claim to the royal title. Here, too, were laid to rest the Fathers of the Scottish Church, and the martyred monks who, like St Blathmac, fell time after time beneath the axes of Scandinavian pirates. Near St Oran's stands the noble church of St Mary, given back to the Church of Scotland by the statesman George, Duke of Argyll, and now finely restored. It was originally the church of the Tironensian Abbey of Icholumkill, founded near the end of the twelfth century by Ranald, Lord of the Isles. About 1506 this church came into the hands of the bishops of the Isles, and became the cathedral of their diocese. Close to it are the ruins of the nunnery of St Mary, founded about 1200 by the same Lord Ranald of the Isles. It was built for Benedictine nuns, but, after a time, passed into the possession of the Cistercian Order. The modern parish church of Iona occupies the site of an ancient chapel of St Kenneth. There is now within the bounds, in the Ross of Mull, a mission chapel of St Ernan.]

KILFINICHEN AND KILVICHIEOAN.

[These two parishes were united early in the seventeenth century. Each parish has its own church, the one at Kilfinichen, and the other at Buncessan. There is now a mission chapel at Pennyghael.

Kilfinichen.—The church of Kilfinichen was dedicated to St Finichen, Abbot of Iona, in the tenth century. On the island of Iniskenneth, within the bounds, are the interesting ruins of a small Tironensian priory of St Kenneth, a cell of Iona. Its roofless church, over forty feet long, is fairly complete, and contains some finely-carved stone-work.

Kilvichieoan, or Cill Mho Eoghain.—The church of Kilvichieoan was dedicated to St Ewan of Ardstraw in Tyrone. There are some remains of a chapel at Pennyecross.]

MARTIN MILVRA, M.A.; trans. from 1631 Killean (Torosay) before Aug. 1631, when MacLaine of Lochbuie came under obligation to pay him his stipend; trans. to Iona 1st Nov. 1643.

KILNINIAN AND KILMORE.

[These two parishes were united in 1628.
Each of them still has its own church.]

Kilninnan.—The church of this parish was dedicated to St Ninian. It belonged to the Abbey of Iona. There was here also a well called Tobar Ninian (St Ninian's Well). There were within the bounds chapels of St Breandan and St Creathanan, and one of St Llag near the Point of Treshnish.

Kilmore, or Kilcholumkill.—The church
of this parish was dedicated to St Columba.
From early times it has been known as Cill Mòr=the Great Church.]

poned by General Assembly 1st Aug. 1649;
was min. of Ardnamurchan in 1650; adm.
here before 16th May 1650. When the Synod was engaged in translating the Scriptures into Gaelic in 1660, the Book
of Nehemiah was selected as his portion.
He was sharply rebuked, 27th Oct. 1658, for ten weeks' absence from his charge on private secular affairs without leave and

also "for gross unchristian asseverations";
was the only min. in Mull 29th May 1661;
conformed to Episcopacy and petitioned Parliament because "for his loyaltie to His Majestie, and adhering to his interest,
he was dep. from the ministrie, robbed and spoiled of all his goodes to the hazard of his utter ruin." An Act was passed 8th July 1662 allowing him £100 Scots of the readiest of the vacant stipends. He died

TIRREE, OR KIRKAPOL.

[In the sixth century St Breandan built a church at Kirkapol in the north-east of Tirree. The ruins of a later parish church, over thirty-five feet in length, still mark its site. After a time Tirree was divided into two parishes. Of these, Kirkapol contains all the north-eastern portion of the island,
and the south-western part forms the parish of Sorobie. On 31st July 1618 the three parishes of Kirkapol, Sorobie, and Coll were united. On 11th March 1866
Coll was severed from the two parishes in Tirree. On 15th February 1875 Heylipol or Sorobie was disjoined from Kirkapol, the only remaining portion of the former united parishes of Tirree. Within the bounds of Kirkapol there were three chapels.

The ruins of that of St Oran at Cladh Odhrain near Kirkapol still stand. The other chapels were St Bride's at Cill Bhride,
and St Finain's at Cill Fhinain.]

THOMAS KNOX, M.A.; app. Dean of 1618 the Isles 4th Aug. 1617; became
min. in 1618, and was elected Bishop of the Isles in 1619 (q.v.).

MARTIN McILVRA, M.A.; was min.

reported on the state of his diocese;
trans. to Killeen (Torosay) before 22nd
March 1631.

FARQUHAR FRASER [or FRAZER],
1632 born near Stratherrick, Inverness-
-hire, about 1606, said to be a cadet
of the family of Lovat through the family
of Tober; educated at Univ. of St Andrews; M.A. (1629); pres. by John, Bishop of the Isles, 1st March, and inst. (at Sorobie)
28th July 1633; became preacher in Sir
Lachlan MacLean's Regiment in 1645 under Montrose, for which he was debarred from his charge and stipend and plundered by Campbell of Ardnamurchan. In 1662 he had a grant from vacant stipends; died 14th Feb. 1680. He was the first minister who constantly preached here and was very diligent among his people, not only in matters of faith and religion but in secular subjects also. It is said that at his coming only three persons (all MacLeans) could write their names. He marr. Janet, daugh.
of Lachlan MacLean of Coll, and had issue.

John, his successor in the charge.—[*Chuan

JOHN FRASER [or FRAZER], born 1678 Mull, 1647, son of preceding; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A.
(July 1667); pres. and coll. by Bishop
Andrew Knox 1st Dec. 1677, and inst.
April 1678. He did not conform to Presbyterianism at the Revolution, but
continued to occupy the charge till 26th

Oct. 1697 when it was declared vacant. Even after that date he remained in the parish preaching and discharging ministerial duties and subsisting on the charity and benevolence of the parishioners. He is said to have won twenty-four families in Coll to Protestantism. He was a learned and good man, very beneficial to his parishioners on account of his wise and winning disposition, understanding well their character and habits. He died 25th Aug. 1702. He marr. 4th March 1677, Mary, daugh. of Mathias Symson, min. of Stirling, and had issue—several sons and daughs. JOHN McKINNON, born Island of 1815 Arran, about 1745, eldest son of Duncan M., farmer; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; after licence he became tutor to the family of the Duke of Argyll; took orders in Church of England and was app. Chaplain to 3rd Foot; D.D. (Edinburgh, 24th June 1794); pres. by George William, Duke of Argyll, Sept. 1814; ord. 27th April 1815. Being in feeble health he left the island without leave being given by the Presb., and went to reside at Ayr. On 6th June 1815 he was ordered back to his parish. A letter from him, dated 11th July, explained that the state of his health forbade such a step, and that under the circumstances the patron had appointed an assistant and successor. On 7th Nov. he was again enjoined to return, but again declined, stating, however, that he had arranged for the pastoral duties to be carried on until his successor was admitted. On revising the proceedings of the Presb., the Synod, on 7th Aug. 1816, recorded their high disapprobation of the conduct of the Presb., particularly for proceeding in such ordination and admission without requiring a certificate from the Presb. in whose bounds M. had resided, which was the more necessary in his case as it was publicly reported and generally believed that he had for many years before been in orders of the Church of England. The Presb. was rebuked. M. had never been present as a member of the Court. He died at Ayr 21st March 1816, four months before the meeting of Synod. [See How Scott, vol. iii., 99, for a copy of M.'s letter to the Presb.] He marr. in 1802 Isabella (died 21st Jan. 1864), daugh. of Lewis Fullarton of Kilnichael, Arran, and had issue—Elizabeth, born 10th May 1805; Campbell, born 27th Sept. 1807; Charlotte, born 17th March 1809; Lewis, born 10th Nov. 1811; John, C.B., M.D., Inspector-General, H.E.I.C.S., born 8th March 1812, died 2nd March 1871.

NEIL MACLEAN, born 11th July 1784, 1817 son of Donald M., min. of Small Isles; educated at Univ. and King's College, Aberdeen; M.A. (30th March 1801); licen. by Presb. of Skye 22nd July 1808; ord. (assistant) at Coll 26th June 1809; trans. to Small Isles (in succession to his father) 16th June 1811; pres. by George William, Duke of Argyll, 27th July 1815; trans. and adm. (by one min. only, who had been detained three days at the Ferry before being able to cross, the others being prevented by "the violence of the winds and the very heavy sea") 7th March 1817. He died 26th Aug. 1859. He marr. 8th May 1811, Isabella, youngest daugh. of Major Alexander Macdonald of Vallay, North Uist, and had issue—Donald, M.D., born 27th Sept. 1815; Harriet, born 9th June 1817; Maria Flora, born 14th Dec. 1818, died young; Alexander, went to Australia, born 30th June 1820; Lillias Margaret, born 4th Sept. 1822 (marr. 9th July 1849, William Mitchell, St Ninians), died 1877; Isabella, born 24th Oct. 1824 (marr. 8th July 1852, Alexander Wentworth Cameron of Glen Nevis). Publication—Account of the Parish (New Stat. Acc., vii.).

JOHN GREGORSON CAMPBELL, 1861 born Kingairloch, 1836, second son of John C., captain of the Cymet, and Helen MacGregor of the family of MacGregor of Roro in Glenlyon; educated at Appin School, High School and Univ. of Glasgow; studied law for some time; licen. by Presb. of Glasgow in 1858; pres. by George Douglas, Duke of Argyll, in 1860; ord. 23rd Aug. 1861, after appeal to the General Assembly, the settlement being opposed by the parishioners; died unmarr. 22nd Nov. 1891. He was recognised as one of the greatest authorities on Celtic folk-lore. In person he was tall and fair, with deep blue eyes full of life and vivacity. He was noted at once for the kindness of his manner and the shrewd causticity of his wit. Publications—Three Trial Sermons (Gaelic) (Edinburgh, 1861); Waifs and Strays of Celtic Tradition, Argyllshire Series, No. iv.; The Fairs; or Stories, Poems, and Traditions of Fionn and his Warrior Band, collected entirely from oral sources [with Introduction and Bibliographical Notes by Alfred Nutt] (London, 1891); Waifs and Strays of Celtic Tradition, Argyllshire Series, No. v.; Clan Traditions and Popular Tales of the Western Highlands and Islands, collected from oral sources [edited by Jessie Wallace and Duncan MacIsaac, with Introduction by Alfred Nutt] (portrait of the author) (London, 1895); Superstitions of the High-

He was a man of considerable learning and vigour of mind. He complained to the Presb. of Edinburgh against the publication of Lord Kames' Essays on the Principles of Morality and Natural Religion (Edinburgh, 1751), but the Presb. dismissed his complaint, which was chiefly directed against the printers of the anonymous publication, 26th Jan. 1757. Publications—The Use and Abuse of Diversions, with an Appendix, showing in particular that the Stage is an Unchristian Diversion [a Sermon on Luke xix., 13] (Edinburgh, 1733, 2nd ed. same year). This called forth a rejoinder—Some Remarks on the Rev. Mr Anderson's Positions concerning the Unlawfulness of Stage Plays (Edinburgh, 1733); A Reinforcement of the Reasons proving that the Stage is an Unchristian Diversion: or a Vindication to the Appendix to the Use and Abuse of Diversions (Edinburgh, 1733); An Estimate of the Profit and Loss of Religion, Personally and Publicly stated (Edinburgh, 1753); A Remonstrance against Lord Viscount Bolingbroke's Philosophical Religion (Edinburgh, 1756); The Complaint to the Presbytery of Edinburgh verified (Edinburgh, 1756).—[Scots Mag., xviii., xix.; Mackenzie's Life of John Home, 39-42 (where Anderson is wrongly referred to as minister of Chirnside); Woodhouselee's Life of Lord Kames; Davidson's Letters; Edin. Bur. Rep.]

FORT AUGUSTUS, OR KILCHUIMIN, CALLED ALSO ABERTARFF (Q.S.).

[The church of Kilchuminin was dedicated to St Cumin, Abbot of Iona. It belonged to the Priory of Beaulieu. This parish of Kilchuminin or Abertarff was united to Boleskine and Dores in 1614. Dores was severed from the other two in 1617. This parish was disjoined from Boleskine in 1676, and was then united to Glenmoriston,
from which it was severed again in 1683,
and in that year was a second time joined to Boleskine. On 12th March 1883 this parish of Kilchuminin or Abertarff was disjoined
again from Boleskine, and erected *quoad
sacra* under the name of Fort Augustus.
A fair of St Cumin was long held in the parish. There is also within the bounds a hill called Saidhe Chuimin (St Cumin's Seat). There were likewise here Wells of

SYNOD OF PERTH AND STIRLING

THE Synod Register begins at the 10th of April 1639. There are gaps in the Record from 12th April 1661 to 4th March 1691, from 18th April 1753 to 15th April 1755, and from 16th April 1804 to 19th April 1808.

PRESBYTERY OF DUNKELD

[The setting up of a Presbytery of Dunkeld was under consideration of the General Assembly in 1581. The Presbytery Register, however, does not begin till 2nd Nov. 1681. From 3rd July 1689 to 20th Oct. 1706 this Court was united to the Presbytery of Perth. There is, therefore, during that time no separate Record of the Presbytery of Dunkeld. In 1651 those members of this Court who belonged to the party of the Protesters formed themselves into a separate Protester Presbytery of Dunkeld. That Protester Presbytery lasted for some years, but no Record of its proceedings is known to exist.]

AUCHTERGAVEN AND LOGIE-BRIDE.

[These parishes were first united in 1618. They were severed again in 1632, but were united a second time in 1647.

Auchtergaven.—On the lands of Tullybeagles, within the bounds, there are the scanty remains of an ancient church building. Near it is a holy well. The name Tullybeagles may, perhaps, be Tulach na h-eaglais—The hill of the Church. There is a mission chapel within the parish at Waterloo.

Logie-Bride.—The church of this parish was dedicated to St Bride. It still stands roofless in the old churchyard. Near it was St Bride's Well.]

AUCHTERGAVEN.

THOMAS ROBERTSON, alias MAC-GIBBON, with Foulis - Wester, 1567 Kinkell, and Madderty also in his charge; min. in 1567; trans. to Moneydie that year.

WILLIAM CREICHTON, reader from 1567 1567 to 1574.

ROBERT CREICHTON, reader in 1579 1579-80; perhaps a misnomer of preceding.

ALEXANDER ANDERSON, born 1627 1593, son of Henry A., burgess of Perth; educated at Univ. of St Andrews; M.A. (1615); was on Exercise at Perth 19th Feb. 1623; adm. to Dowallie in 1623; trans. and adm. in 1627. He made an agreement with Alexander Chrystison, min. of Logiebride, for a mutual stipend, which contract was delivered to the bishop; A. and C. brought actions in the Court of Session which set it aside, 15th Feb. 1631, and preferred C. to the united stipend, so A. having no benefice, was forced to live many years in great distress, "being burdened with a wife and family." He died 30th Jan. 1665. He marr. Grisell Ballendene, who died 11th July 1665, aged 68, and had issue—John, min. of this parish.—[Tombst.; Durie's Dec.; Perth Sas., 18th Feb. 1627; Hunter's Dioc. of Dunkeld, 143.]

JOHN ANDERSON, M.A., son of preceding; clerk to Presb. in 1655; 1656 adm. (assistant) between 6th Jan. 1656 and 13th Oct. 1657; deprived by Act of Parliament 11th June, and Decree of Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662; was cited before Privy Council in 1663 for still retaining office and ministry; became min. at Glenarn, Antrim, 1671-85, and at Antrim 1685-8; returned here in 1690.

WILLIAM ÆSONE, M.A. (St Andrews 1666 1643); adm. to Tannadice prior to 23rd Jan. 1658; trans. and adm. between 21st Nov. and 19th Dec. 1666; deprived by the Privy Council, 8th Oct. 1689, for neither reading the Proclamation of the Estates nor praying for William and Mary, but praying that the Lord would exalt King James's horns above his enemies, and that they and their designs might be confounded. He intruded from Feb. 1695 to 8th June 1696; died in 1700. He marr. Anna Ogilvy, and had issue—John, M.A., intruded at Cargill April 1706; Jean (marr. 1689, Adam Reid of Pitnacree); Catherine (marr., cont. 11th July 1692, Henry Moone of Fordie).—[Peterkin's Constitution of the Church; Hunter's Dioc. of Dunkeld, 157.]

JOHN ANDERSON, M.A., above mentioned; app. to Perth pro tempore, 1690 April 1689, by the Synod but relinquished; restored by Act of Parliament, 25th April 1690; trans. to Leslie 30th June 1691.

THOMAS FISHER, trans. from Barr 1698 26th April 1698; trans. to Rhynd 6th Oct. 1699.

JAMES WALKER, M.A.; called 13th 1701 Feb., and ord. 30th April 1701; trans. to Forteviot 9th Oct. 1706.

PATRICK STEWART, son of John S. 1711 of Bonskeid and Agnes Ogilvy; educated at Univ. of St Andrews; M.A. (12th July 1698); licen. by Presb. of Dunkeld 17th Jan. 1705; called 30th July 1707; ord. 31st May 1711; delay arose from a proposal to send him to Glenlivet as he knew Gaelic, and afterwards in regard to his trials, but the Assembly, 16th May 1711, appointed his settlement to take place; died 22nd Nov. 1744. He marr. Christian Allan, who died s.p. 29th Jan. 1753.—[Dunkeld Tests.; Wodrow's Corresp., i., 224.]

BLAIR-ATHOLL, STRUAN, KIL- MOVEONAIG, AND LUDE.

[These four parishes were united early in the seventeenth century.]

Blair-Atholl.—The ancient parish church
 of Blair-Atholl stands roofless in the churchyard at Old Blair. It was dedicated to St Bride. In a vault under it are buried many members of the Duke of Atholl's family. There, too, are laid the remains of John Graeme of Claverhouse, Viscount of Dundee, who, having been mortally wounded at the battle of Rull-crankie, died in the old inn of Blair-Atholl.

Struan.—The church of Struan is still in use as a mission chapel. It was dedicated to St Fillan, and St Fillan's Well is near. Of old this parish was often styled

Struan Robertson, to distinguish it from Struan Stirling in Strathearn. At Trina-fuar, within the bounds, there is now a mission chapel.

Kilmoneonig or Kilmocheonaig.—The parish church was dedicated to St Adamnan. Its site is now occupied by an Episcopal Chapel. At Cill Ainrais, not far off, there was of old a chapel of St Andrew. The place beside it still bears the name of Dail an t-Sagairt (The Priest's Field).

Lude.—On the lands of Little Lude some scanty remains of the ancient church of Lude can still be seen.]

DUNKELD AND DOWALLIE.

[These parishes were united before the middle of the seventeenth century.]

Dunkeld.—From a very early time Dunkeld was the seat of a richly endowed Celtic Abbey. Like other well-known monasteries of that period, the Abbey of Dunkeld fell ultimately under the sway of a powerful landed family, whose chiefs succeeded one another as hereditary abbots. Notable among these lay abbots of Dunkeld was Creathanan Mac Dhonochaidh, who married Beathag, the elder daughter of King Malcolm II. Their son Duncan came to the throne upon the death of his grandfather Malcolm, and his son Malcolm III. made good his title to the royal inheritance in 1057. Since then all the Kings of Scotland have sprung from the line of Creathanan the Abbot. Alexander I., the eighth son of Malcolm III., succeeded to the Crown in 1107, and in that year he converted the Abbey of Dunkeld into a bishopric, making Cornac, the then ruling Abbot, its first bishop. The vicarage of Dunkeld was, until the time of the Reformation, a very small parish. Its parochial bounds reached but a short way beyond the limits of the little cathedral town. There was, moreover, no parish church. In the cathedral were held all the church services of the parish. This may possibly have been, at least in part, a surviving usage of those early times when Dunkeld was under the rule of a great abbot, and the government of the Scottish Church was still in some degree monastic. The cathedral stands on a beautiful site, on the left bank of the Tay, close to the river. In 1560 it was made the church of the parish. It is 224 feet in length: but the nave has long been roofless. The choir, tower, and chapter-house are complete. At the beginning of the twentieth century the choir was finely restored by Sir Donald Currie of Garth, Bart., K.C.M.G. In the square chapter-house on the north side of the church the Duke of Atholl has a burial-place. There are a number of monuments in various parts of the building, some of them very fine. St Columba is the patron, as he was of old of the Celtic Abbey; and St Columba's Well was hard by, close to the river bank. Besides the high altar of St Columba, there were, in the cathedral, shrines of the Holy Rood, St Mary, the Holy Innocents, St John the Baptist, All Saints, St Michael, St Andrew, St Ninian, St Martin, St Nicholas, St Stephen, and St Katherine. In the town of Dunkeld, Robert of Cardney, one of the bishops, built a chapel of St Ninian in 1420. In 1510 Bishop George Broun also founded there a hospital of St George. Besides these, Dunkeld had a chapel of the Holy Trinity. On St Columba's day the town kept a yearly fair in honour of the patron saint.

Dowallie.—In early times St Muireach made Dowallie the seat of his mission work among the Picts. The country tradition has not ceased to tell of the many pilgrims who used to visit his holy well near the church. In 1509 Bishop Broun rebuilt the ancient chapel of St Muireach, and gave the new building the name of St Anne. In that year, too, the bishop disjoined the parish of Dowallie from Caputh. It was then also that the well beside the churchyard was dedicated to St Anne, so that Dowallie had two holy wells. At Guay, within the bounds, a hospital was founded in 1340. Farther north, at Daleapon, there was a chapel with its sacred well. At the Crues Hill, near Dunkeld, but in this parish, a well of the Holy Rood was much frequented on the first Sunday in May. The church of Dowallie was restored in 1818, and is now in use as a mission chapel.]

[The parish church was dedicated to St Ninian, and prior to the Reformation belonged to the Priory of St Andrews. From a very early time there was at Dull a great Celtic monastery. Like other foundations of that kind, it fell under the sway of a powerful landed family, and its government was more or less hereditary. The wide estate which its abbots thus held is still called the Appin (Abbot's Lands) of Dull. Part of the old monastic property also bears the name of Dalmonach (The Monk's Field). In the twelfth century this ancient abbey, like others, was converted by the Crown into a Tironensian Priory. Its patron was always St Adamnan, and St Adamnan's Well was at the Priory. The parish church had, beside it, a Well of St Ninian. An important yearly market held at Dull was called Feill Eonain (Adamnan's Fair). The parish of Fincastle, now named Tenantry, was united to Dull in the seventeenth century, but was disjoined again in 1851.]

GRANTULLY (Q.S.).

[The parish of Grantully was disjoined
from Little Dunkeld and Dull on 12th March 1883. At Pitcairn, within the bounds, stands a chapel about 80 feet
long, built in 1533 by Alexander Stewart
of Grantully, part of which is now used as a burial vault by that family. It was dedicated to St Mary, St Andrew, St Adamnan, and St Bean. Outwardly, this is a very plain structure; but its wooden roof is covered on the inside with fine fresco paintings. These were added to the older work by Sir William Stewart
of Grantully in 1636.]

KENMORE, OF OLD INISADAIN.

[The ancient church of this parish was dedicated to St Aidan. Its site at Inisadain (Aidan's Meadow), on the north bank of the Tay, is now within the grounds of Taymouth Castle. At Kenmore, to which place the church has been moved, there was long held a Fair of St Peter. A parish church was built at Kenmore in 1579, but the old church was used occasionally until 1760, when the manse was removed from Inisadain. On the island of Eilean Adain (Aidan's Isle), near the east end of Loch Tay and not far from Kenmore, there was an early Celtic monastic foundation. At this place, on the 12th of July 1122, Queen Sibyl, wife of Alexander I., died suddenly. At Eilean Adain she was buried, and forthwith King

Alexander renewed the ancient foundation, making it, however, an Augustinian Priory. He then, for the good of his own soul and that of his departed queen, bestowed Ealean Adain on the Abbey of Scone, of which it became a cell. At Carwhyn, in this parish, there is a mission chapel.]

KINLOCH - RANNOCH, OF OLD KILCHONAIN IN RANNOCH (Q.S.).

[The church of this parish was dedicated to St Conan. In 1585 the three parishes of Fortingal, Glenlyon, and Kilchonain were united. A parliamentary chapel was built in 1826 at Kinloch in Rannoch, and the parish was disjoined from Fortingal and Logierait on 11th June 1845.]

PATRICK WILLIAMSON, reader in 1574 1574 to his death in 1582.

[DUGALD BUCHANAN, Royal Bounty 1755 catechist, born Ardoch, Balquhiddy, 1716, son of John B., farmer and miller, and Janet Ferguson (a relative of Rob Roy); educated at the S.P.C.K. School, Balquhiddy, and at Stirling. He began life as a carpenter at Kippen. In 1742 he came under the influence of the preaching of George Whitefield, and spent much of his time in religious meditation and the writing of sacred verse. In 1751 he taught a side school at Drumcastle, in the parish, and in 1755 became schoolmaster at Kinloch-Rannoch, being appointed also to the post of catechist. He had remarkable influence as an evangelist. It is said that two clans who were at deadly feud assembled to hear him preach: he spoke from a rock in the middle of the river Gaur, which separated the rival parties, and pled so earnestly with his audience that the people, overcome with emotion, rushed into the stream and embraced one another, and from that day forward a "truce of God" existed between the two clans. In the General Assembly of 1761 it was reported that "the country of Rannoch from being possessed by the most lawless and thievish people, is now becoming greatly civilised, and no thefts or robberies are heard of among the inhabitants, 2000 in number." He assisted James Stuart, min. of Killin, in publishing the first edition of the Gaelic New Testament. For this purpose he went to Edinburgh—to supervise the printing—and while there he took classes in the University and founded the first Gaelic congregation in the city. A movement was set on foot for his ordination, but the Presb. refused consent. While attending to his wife and family, who had been stricken with an epidemic fever at Rannoch, he caught the infection and died 2nd June 1768. He was buried at Little Leny, Balquhiddy. On 17th Nov. 1875 a handsome monument was erected to his memory at Kinloch-Rannoch. Known as the "Cowper of the Highlands," B.'s poetical genius was of the first order, and some of his poems—"The Day of Judgment," "The Dream," "The Skull," "The sufferings of Christ," and "Winter," are still read with enthusiasm by all Celts. He marr. in 1749, Margaret Brisbane, Lawers, Crief, whose father was land steward to the Earl of Loudoun. She died at Ardoch in 1824, and had issue—two sons and two daughters. WEEM.

[The church of Weem was dedicated to St Cuthbert, and beside it was St Cuthbert's Well. The quaint old church still stands, but is used now only as a place of burial. There are some very interesting monuments in it. Besides the church, there was at Weem a famous Chapel of St David, a local hermit, whose cave and holy well were frequented by pilgrims. The yearly tryst of Weem was called in his honour, Feill Dhaidh (David's Fair). On 5th July 1921 a decree transporting the church to a building formerly used as an Episcopal Chapel was pronounced by Court of Teinds.]

PRESBYTERY OF PERTH

[The erection of a Presbytery of Perth was under the consideration of the General Assembly as early as April 1581. The Presbytery Register, however, does not now begin till 22nd April 1618. There are gaps in the Record from 27th March 1661 to 29th Oct. 1662, and from 21st Sept. 1681 to 30th July 1690. An earlier volume than any of those extant began in 1595. It was in the hands of the Presbytery Clerk on 15th March 1626, but no trace of it can now be found.]

ABERDALGIE AND DUPPLIN.

[These parishes were united in 1618.

Aberdalgie.—This was one of several parishes in which, for some years after 1560, the Romanist party was able to keep possession of the church, and to make it impossible to hold Protestant services.

Dupplin.—In 1564 it was reported to the Secret Council that the kirk of the Rectory of Dupplin was kept closed, so that the Reformed worship could not be held there.]

WILLIAM MELROSE, exhorter at Findogask (Trinity Gask); was 1567 examined and admitted by the superintendent jure devoluto, and had letters from the King to the Lords of Session ordaining said admission to be enforced, 27th April 1567; trans. to Gask in 1572.

ROBERT SIMPSON alias GLOOK, reader at Dupplin and Tibbermore
1574 in 1574; styled parson of Dupplin in 1613. He was father of John of Glook.—[Reg. of Deeds, ccxxi. 193; Mar. Charters.]

 George, Bishop of Dunkeld, 14th May, trans.
 and adm. 23rd Aug. 1663; died in Aug.
 1667, aged about 34. Kirkton says: "This poor man lived in great trouble, and seemed to die in despair; for when he took his death-bed, first he sent for Mr Halyburton
 and craved his pardon for entering into his church contrare to the will of God; then
 he desired him to pray for him, which Mr
 H. did very heartily, but to small purpose,
 alace! for his horror continued, because of his perjury, even to the last." He marr.
 Margaret, daugh. of Alexander Balnevis,
 min. of Tibbermore, who survived him, and 1576 to 1584.

ABERNETHY, OF OLD OBAIR NEACHITAIN.

[The church of Abernethy was dedicated to St Bride. It belonged to the Abbey of Arbroath. In 1469 George, Earl of Angus, granted to this church a collegiate endowment. From early Pietish times Abernethy was the seat of a great Celtic Abbey. The high, round tower of this monastery, standing by itself in the churchyard, and looking over the church, is one of our most interesting early buildings. In 1273 the abbey was converted into an Augustinian Priory, and was made a Cell of Inchaffray, retaining, however, its ancient dedication to St Bride. There is in this parish a Well of St Breandan.]

SIR ALEXANDER MONCREIFF, vicar, died before 1567; probably a Romish priest who conformed.

WILLIAM HATTIE, ind. to fourth part of the parsonage and vicarage, vacant by death of above, in 1567. —[Prot. Book, Sir Duncan Gray, 83.]

PATRICK GALT, min. in 1567, with Abdie also in charge; trans. to Edrom before 1571. "The only evidence that still remains of him is a receipt for stipend to Lady Jane Lyndsay of Balvaird, written in a beautiful hand, and pointing to the fact that he must have been a man of considerable education." —[Butler's Abernethy, 239.]

JOHN WEMYSS, pres. to vicarage 11th Sept. 1572. —[Reg. Sec. Sig., xli., 15; Acts and Dec., l., 142.]

JOHN PITCAIRN, son of Andrew P. of Invernethy; reader in 1583; adm. notary public 29th Oct. 1576. He marr. Katherine Lyell, who died Sept. 1583. —[Scot. Antiq., ix., 7.]

PATRICK WEMYSS, perhaps son of above John W.; removed from Dunbarney in 1585, with Dron, Pottie, Moncreiff, Rhynd, and Arngask also in the charge; returned to Dron in 1586.

ARCHIBALD MONCREIFF of Balgony (primus), born about 1562, 1586 fifth son of William, eldest son of William M. of that ilk, and Jean, daugh. of Laurence, third Lord Oliphant; educated in England and Univ. of St Andrews; M.A. (21st March 1580); adm. in 1586, with Arngask also in charge; pres. to vicarage by James VI. before 1st Sept. 1595; app. Prior and Commendator of Elcho 28th Jan. 1601, and conjointly with his second son to a yearly pension from the Abbey of Scone of £466, 13s. 4d. on 1st and 17th May 1606. He was appointed by the Privy Council, 6th March 1589, one of the commissioners for the Preservation of True Religion in Perth, Stormont, and Dunkeld; was a member of Assembly in 1590, 1597, 1602, 1610, and 1618. He purchased the estate of Balgony in 1611; was recommended for a bishopric, and was a member of the Court of High Commission 15th June 1619; dem. before 26th Nov. 1630; died between 29th Aug. and 23rd Nov. 1634. He marr. Margaret, daugh. of Sir William Auchinlock of Balmanno, and had issue—Archibald, his successor in the parish; George, min. of Arngask; Andrew, advocate, 1637; John, served under Gustavus Adolphus in Germany; Mary (marr. John Arnott of Pitmedden); Sarah (marr. John Lockhart, son of Lee); Ann (marr. John Wood, min. of Tulliallan); Elizabeth (marr., cont. 10th Sept. and 5th Oct. 1635, Robert, son to David Dempstertoun, portioner of Auchtermuchty). —[Seton's House of Moncreiff, 136; Rec. Sec. Sig.; Reg. of Deeds, cccxciii., 129; Melvill's Autob., 703; Butler's Abernethy, 354.]

ARCHIBALD MONCREIFF of Balgony (secundus), born about 1594, 1630 eldest son of preceding; educated at Univ. of St Andrews; M.A. (1614); ord. to Dollar after 23rd June 1619; pres. by David, Viscount Stormont, with consent of Andrew Murray of Balvaird, in April, adm. by Alexander, Bishop of Dunkeld, in May, and pres. by Charles I. 28th Nov. 1630; but owing to opposition to his admission in the Presb. he does not appear to have been settled till 1634. He sold the estate of Balgony to William Oliphant in 1644; was suspended 21st Jan. 1657; reposed by the Presb. 19th June 1660; died April 1671. He marr. ROBERT JUNKINE [JENKIN or JENKINS], born 1646; passed trials 1672 for licence before Presb. of Brechin 21st Nov. 1666; pres. by Charles II., and adm. 17th Jan. 1672; deprived by Privy Council, 17th Sept. 1689, for not reading Proclamation of Estates, and not praying for William and Mary; died at Edinburgh, 19th Aug. 1726, "a quiet, zealous man." He marr. Elizabeth Murray, and had issue—Robert. —[Greyfriars Burials; G. R. Hornie's, 13th Sept., 673; Butler's Abernethy, 400.]

ALEXANDER DUNNING of Corriewester, a probationer within the 1691 bounds of the Presb. and apparently a Perthshire native; ord. 29th April 1691; died 26th July 1719; "a quiet and faithful minister." He marr. Bethia Moncreiff, and had issue—Thomas; Alexander; John; Hugh; Robert. —[Perth Sas., xv., 247. Services of Heirs.]

ALEXANDER MONCRIEFF of Culfargie, born 17th July 1695, son 1720 of Matthew M. of Culfargie and Margaret Mitchell; educated at Perth Grammar School and St Leonard's College, St Andrews; M.A. (5th May 1714); attended a course of theology at Leiden under John à Marek and Wesselius; licen. by Presb. of Perth 29th April 1719; called 26th April, and by Presb. jure devoluto, 24th Aug., and ord. 14th Sept. 1720. He sympathised with Ebenezer Erskine, and the Commission of Assembly on 9th Aug. 1733 suspended him and three associates from the exercise of their ministry. As they refused obedience, on 16th Nov. the Commission declared them no longer ministers of the Church. M. with his brethren met at Gairney Bridge 6th Dec. that year, and formed the Associate Presbytery. The General Assembly of 1734 reposed him to office. From 1734 to 1740 he preached from the parish church pulpit, occupied the manse, received the stipend, yet protested against the jurisdiction of the Church, declined to attend Presb. meetings, or in any way to be amenable to ecclesiastical authority. He was finally dep. by the Assembly 15th May 1740. He was appointed by the Associate Presb. Professor of Divinity in Feb. 1742; joined with those who were against the Burgess Oath, and was one of the founders of the General Associate Synod 16th April 1747; died 7th Oct. 1761. He marr. (1) 10th March 1722, Mary, eldest daugh. of Sir John Clerk of Penicuik, Bart., and had issue—Christian, born 1723, died in infancy; Margaret, born 1724, died in infancy; Matthew of Culfargie, min. of Associate Congregation at Airthrey, born 1725, died 11th June 1767. (2) 10th Sept. 1728, Jean (died 1791), daugh. of William Lyon of Wester Ogle, min. of Airlie, and had issue—William, min. of Associate Congregation at Alloa, and Professor of Divinity in succession to his father, born 1729, died 4th Aug. 1786; James, died young; George, physician, Perth; Ebenezer, born 1731; Margaret (marr. "Here ceast and silent lies sweet sounding Bell,

Who unto sleeping souls rung many a knell;
Death crackt this Bell, yet doth his pleasant chiming
Remain with those who are their lamps a-trimming.
In spite of death, his word some praise still sounds
In Christ's church, and in heaven his joy abounds."

KINNOULL.

[The church of Kinnoull was dedicated to St Constantine the King. It belonged to the Abbey of Cambuskenneth. Within the church there was a Chapel of St Ninian. In Kinnoull Church, on 4th August 1514, Queen Margaret Tudor, widow of James IV., was married to Archibald, Earl of Angus.]

WILLIAM RYND, son of Patrick R. in 1568 Perth, was one of those residing in St Andrews whom the first General Assembly, 20th Dec. 1560, considered most qualified for ministering the Word and Sacraments; became master of the Grammar School of Perth in 1562, which office he dem. in favour of his son Patrick in 1599; adm. here in February 1568, with Kinfauns in the charge in 1574; pres. to parsonage and vicarage by the Presb., and confirmed therein by the Crown, 12th Jan. 1597; was a member of eight Assemblies from 1576 to 1597; was one of those app. in 1576 for drawing up the Second Book of Discipline, and one of the Commissioners app. by the Privy Council, 6th March 1589, for the preservation of the true religion in Perth, Stormont, and Dunkeld. He died at an advanced age, 20th Feb. 1610, having, it is said, accumulated "great riches," and alleged to have made "a god of his geir." He marr. (1) 9th May 1563, Beatrix, said to be a daugh. of Pitcairn of that Ilk, and had issue—Colin, min. of Auchtergaven; Robert, min. of Longforgan; Patrick, min. of Dron; William, tutor to John, Earl of Gowrie, and Alexander his brother, whom he attended to Padua in 1594-7. He suffered much on account of his connection with that peer, and in his reduced circumstances the Kirk-session of Cupar, 18th Feb. 1644, gave him two dollars: (2) before 9th Aug. 1603, Isabel Stoup.—[Scott's Reformers; Perth Sas., iii., 329; Melvill's Autob., 55; *Cupar Sess. PERTH, ST JOHN'S.

[St John's, Perth, called for a time the parish of St Johnstoun.—The church of Perth was dedicated to St John the Baptist, and the town itself was long known as St Johnstoun. Its ancient Celtic name of Perth was then seldom heard except among those who spoke Gaelic. The church belonged to the Abbey of Dunfermline. Prior to 1603, Perth was a favourite place of royal residence. Its name is often seen on the pages of Scottish history. In this prominence St John's Church has a share. In 1296 the English king, Edward I., stayed for some time at Perth. On St John's Day in Harvest, he was one of the worshippers in the church.

In medieval times, Perth was long the chief seat of monastic life and influence in Scotland. The friars in especial had much power there. In Perth, as elsewhere during the sixteenth century, popular feeling came to be keenly hostile to the friars. Thus Perth was made a battleground of the Reformation struggle. In 1407, James Resby, an English priest, and probably a refugee from the rising Lollard persecution in England, was tried for heresy and burned at Perth. On one day in 1544, five of the citizens of St Johnstoun, and the wife of one of them, were executed there as heretics, the men being hanged and the woman drowned. So the strife was kept up. On the 10th of May 1559 it came to a head. In St John's Church that morning, a sermon on image worship and other prevalent religious practices was preached by John Knox. His hearers were moved indeed, but the service came quietly to an end, and the preacher went his way. Later in the day, during a service before one of the altars of the church, some brawling took place. Quickly a riot arose, and the church furnishings were badly damaged. Forthwith the outbreak spread throughout the town, and was turned with great violence against the friars. Thus, as from a chance spark, there was kindled in Perth a flame that soon set the whole land ablaze.

In 1618 the General Assembly met at Perth. Some of its meetings, probably all of them, were held in St John's Church.

Here, as in other Scottish towns, the population has grown greatly, and more or less steadily, since the middle of the sixteenth century. In 1595 this growth led to the erection of a Second Charge in the ministry of Perth. But the burden of a prosperous community went on growing. Therefore it was proposed to erect the landward district of Perth into a separate parish. In 1651, however, when this scheme had been fully matured, the Town Council found itself compelled to delay further action in the matter "because of the troubles of the times." The subject was taken up again in 1693, and at later dates, but without reaching a practical result. On 14th February 1715 action of another kind was taken. The Town Council, "because of the growing numbers of the inhabitants of the town and parish," resolved that a Third Charge should be erected. This was carried out, and William Wilson was appointed minister. No endowment was raised for the purpose, but the stipend was provided by a yearly payment from the city funds. In 1740 Mr Wilson ceased to be a minister of the Church of Scotland, and in 1741 the Town Council, alleging that a third minister of Perth was no longer needed, withdrew its grant for payment of the stipend. In lieu of the minister of the Third Charge, an ordained assistant to the incumbents of the First and Second Charges was maintained by the Kirk-session, and so the work of the parish was carried on.

During the eighteenth century the need of accommodation for the worshipping parishioners grew more and more urgent. As a sort of stop-gap, in 1715 St John's Church was partitioned off into two places of worship, termed the Old and the New Churches. When these failed to hold the people, the ancient church was further divided into three parts, called the East, the Middle, and the West Churches. The method adopted for public worship was curious. Each of the three ministers, in turn, conducted service successively in each of the three churches. Thus a constant rotation of ministry was kept up. This system lasted till 1806. Then, because of the growing number of those for whom no room could be found in St John's, the Town Council resolved to suppress the Second Charge, to build a new church, and to call a fourth minister. Accordingly, St Paul's Church was built in 1807. The Second Charge having come to an end, three new parochial districts were taken off St John's Parish. These were the Middle Parish, the West Parish, and St Paul's. The eastern part of the ancient church was left in the possession of the remaining portion of St John's Parish. This included a great part of the city, with all the large landward district. It has come to be commonly called the East Parish of Perth.

St John's Church is a building worthy of its historic parish. It is rather less than 200 feet long, but of old it was somewhat larger. There were many altars in it, including shrines of the Holy Trinity, the Holy Name, St Mary, St Joseph, St Gabriel, St Michael, St Peter, St Bartholomew, St Nicholas, St Eloi, St Ninian, St Duthac, St Tridwal, St Erasmus, St Crispin, St Crispinian, St Severus, St Blaise, St Bride, St Mungo, St Laurence, St John the Evangelist, St Stephen, St Sebastian, St Clement, St Adamnan, St Filkan, St Katherine, St Gregory, St Augustine, St Thomas the Apostle, St Thomas the Martyr, St Andrew, St Simon, St Roque, St Faith, St Martin, St Margaret, St James, St

Magdalene, St Barbara, St Denys, and St Christopher.

Medieval Perth was in great measure a town of priests and monks. The oldest and most famous of its convents was the House of the Black Friars, founded in 1231 by King Alexander II. It was built a short way outside the walls, and was dedicated to St John and St James. It was much favoured as a royal residence. There were times too when the king's enemies occupied it. It was in the House of the Black Friars, on the 24th of July 1291, that Edward I. of England received the homage of the city of Perth, and of the chief men of the country round. In this religious house, on the 21st of February 1437, King James I. was murdered. There were notable monuments in its church over those who lay buried there, among them the tomb of Elizabeth Mure, the first wife of Robert II. In that church, too, there were chapels of St John the Evangelist and St Nicholas. Some way off, but also close to the city walls, stood the Priory of the Charterhouse, founded in 1429 by James I. and his Queen Joanna Beaufort. They both were buried in its church. There too, in 1541, were laid the remains of Queen Margaret Tudor, widow of James IV. With the exception of the small Priory of Mackerston, this great monastery was the only convent of the Carthusians in Scotland. After the quaint manner of their Order, they termed it the House of the Valley of Virtue. On the other side of Perth, but just outside of the town, and by the side of the Tay, stood the House of the Grey Friars, founded in 1460 by Laurence, first Lord Oliphant. In accordance with the strict rules of the Observantine Branch of the Order, to which it belonged, it was quite a plain building, and was of but moderate size. A larger and more ornate edifice was the House of the White Friars, built by Alexander III. in 1262. It was placed at Tullilum in the landward part of the parish, and was less than a mile from Perth.

There were also in this parish, partly in the town and partly outside of it, various religious houses of a smaller kind. At the end of the Bridge of Perth, on the town side of the Tay, was the chapel of St Mary. It was already there in 1210. Outside the town, and about a mile to the south of it, stood the Hospital of St Magdalene, worked by a little community of nuns. Nearer Perth was St Leonard's Hospital and Priory, a Cistercian House. Not far from it stood the chapel of St Laurence. Between it and St John's Church there was the Hospital of St Anne. In the heart of the city stood the chapel of the Holy Rood. There too was St Paul's Hospital, built in 1434. On the north side of Perth, at the place called the Claypots, stood the Hospital of St Katherine and the chapel of Our Lady of Loretto, in which were altars of St Nicholas and St Katherine.

To keep in mind the birth of its patron saint, Perth held the fair of St John in Harvest. By the fair of Midsummer Day it commemorated his martyrdom. So far back as 1442, the Midsummer Tryst was a leading event of the year. Four other fairs were annually observed—Our Lady Day in Lentron, being the Feast of the Annunciation, Palm Sunday, Andrewmas Fair, and the Tryst of St Denys.

On 27th Oct. 1921, a summons was presented to the Court of Teinds by the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Councillors of Perth as heritors of the parish, in which they stated that it is highly expedient that the Church of St John should be restored, and they outlined a scheme whereby the existing parishes, East, Middle, and West, should be disjoined and erected into two parishes—namely, the parish of St John and the parish of St Mark. The former is to embrace the building known as the Church of St John the Baptist, and the latter the existing Chapel of Ease, St Mark's Church.

The existing East, Middle, and West Churches will be combined into one church in the present building as restored, and the present ministers of the East and Middle parishes will become the ministers of St John's Parish, while the present minister of the West Church will become the first minister of St Mark's Parish.]

JOHN ROW, born "in a landward 1500 rounne called Row," near Dunblane,
 about 1526; educated at the Grammar
 School of Stirling and St Leonards
 College, St Andrews, where he matriculated in 1544; M.A.; studied Canon Law and practised as an advocate in the Consistory Court of St Andrews; app. in 1550 agent
 for the Scottish clergy at Rome, where he remained seven or eight years; Licentiate
 of Laws (20th Feb. 1556), and LL.D.
 Padua. The fame of his talents and learning led to his intimacy with Pope Paul IV. and some of the cardinals, and would probably have led to his promotion; but owing to ill-health he was compelled to return to Scotland, when he was appointed nuncio to investigate the causes of the Reformation and to devise means for checking its progress. He reached Eyemouth on 29th Sept. 1558, but finding himself unable to fulfil his injunctions, returned to Rome
 before 11th May 1559. After a short residence there, he came back by persuasion of James, Prior of St Andrews, afterwards
 Earl of Moray, and having seen the falsehood and imposition of a pretended miracle
 at St Allaret's Chapel, Musselburgh, he joined the Reformers. He was adm. to Kennoway in April 1560, before the Reformation was fully established; was one of six min. appointed by the Lords of the Congregation for "writing in a book
 their judgments touching the Reformation of religion." These appeared in the Confession of Faith and First Book of Discipline; trans. (by consent of the General Congregation of Edinburgh) 17th
 July, and adm. before 20th Dec. 1560; app.
 by the General Assembly, 10th July 1568,
 to visit Galloway; is styled Commissioner
 of Nithsdale and Galloway, March 1579;
 elected Moderator of the General Assembly
 21st July and 25th Dec. 1567, 24th April
 1576, and 11th June 1578; died 16th
 Oct. 1580, at which time he held the vicarages of Twynholm and Terregles in Galloway. He was "a cautious and prudent reformer, of moderate views,

benevolent disposition, and amiable and
 winning manners, a wise and grave father,
 of good literature according to the time."
 He was skilled in the original languages of Scripture, and did much towards building up the Reformed Church in Scotland. He marr. 1560, Margaret, second daugh. of John Beaton of Balfour, and had issue—
 Thomas, died young; James, min. of Kilspindie, bapt. 25th June 1562; William,
 min. of Forgandenny, born 1563; Oliver,
 died young; John, min. of Carnock, bapt.
 6th Jan. 1568; Robert; Archibald, min.
 of Stobo, bapt. 23rd March 1571; Patrick,
 died young; Colin, min. of St Quivox, bapt. 1st March 1576; Henry, died young;
 Catherine (marr. William Rigg of Athelnie, merchant, Edinburgh), died 15th Dec. 1615; Mary (marr. Robert Rynd, min. of Long-forgan). Publication—Signes of the Sacramentes (of which no copy is known to be extant). He was also one of those who

PATRICK GALLOWAY, trans. from 1581 Foulis Easter; called 14th Nov.
 1580; adm. after 24th April 1581;
 incurring the displeasure of Esmé, Duke
 of Lennox, and being suspected of attachment to the Gowrie interest, he was obliged
 in May 1584 to take refuge in England,
 where he joined James Melvill in London,
 and afterwards ministered with him at Newcastle. On procuring the king's favour,
 he returned in Nov. 1585, and in June 1589 became min. of the king's house. Was afterwards min. of St Giles, Edinburgh, 1607.

JOHN HOWIESON of Cambuslang; app.

 min. 15th Aug. 1585.

PATRICK GALLOWAY, above men-1585 tioned.

JOHN MALCOLM, regent in St Leonard's College, St Andrews; ord. 1591 4th Nov. 1591; member of Assembly 1592 and 1618. During the meeting of Parliament at Perth, 9th July 1606, he entertained a large number of ministers in his house, and there the Protestation signed by him and forty-one others against the introduction of Episcopacy was revised previous to being laid before the Lords of the Articles. He was summoned before the Court of High Commission, 8th Aug. 1615, for presuming, in the dedication of his Commentary, to solicit His Majesty to mitigate the sentence pronounced on those brethren who had been banished for holding an Assembly at Aberdeen contrary to the royal pleasure. During a great flood of the Tay from 13th to 15th Oct. 1621, which inundated the city and demolished the bridge, he met with his parishioners on Sunday, 14th, at 7 A.M., and several days after, and by "his powerful exhortation moved the people to cry to God with tears, clamours, and cries, to hold up their hearts to God to amend their lives." He died 3rd Oct. 1634, "a grave, godlie, and learned man," of whom Andrew Melville said—

"Perdus et pernox dux gregis inter oves, Voce doces vivus, scriptis post fata docebis."

[The church of this parish was dedicated to St Monenna. It belonged to the ancient and famous Abbey of Scone which stood in this parish. Originally an early Celtic monastery, it was founded anew as an Augustinian Abbey by Alexander I. in 1114. It was then re-dedicated of new to the Holy Trinity, St Mary, St Michael, St John, St Laurence, and St Augustine. In early times Scone was a Pictish stronghold. In its Abbey Pictish Kings and their Scottish successors of the race of Kenneth MacAlpin were proclaimed, and invested with sovereign power. At a later date, when Macbeth and Lulach had both been overthrown, Malcolm III.

was crowned at Scone on 25th April 1058. The following among his successors were likewise crowned at Scone—Malcolm IV., William the Lion, Alexander II., Alexander III., John Balliol, Robert the Bruce, Edward Balliol, Robert II., Robert III., James I., James IV., and Charles II. Many meetings of Parliament and other royal functions were held at Scone Abbey. Here long reposed the famous stone Lia Fuid, now at Westminster. In the Abbey Church King Robert II. was buried on 13th Aug. 1390. A new church was built at New Scone in 1804-5. It is constructed almost entirely from the material of a church erected only twenty years before, the stones marked and numbered as they were taken down, being put up in the same order. The oak pew of the Scone family, bearing the date 1616, was brought from Holland, and upon it Charles II. was crowned in 1651.

There is now in the parish of Scone a mission chapel of St David.]

PRESBYTERY OF AUCHTERARDER

[In April 1581 the General Assembly had under consideration a proposal to erect at Crieff a Presbytery for this district. In 1593, however, we find the court seated at Dunblane. In that year the Assembly caused it to be removed to Auchterarder. In the seventeenth century the place of meeting was changed to Muthill; but, after a few years, the court was brought back to Auchterarder. The Register of Presbytery begins at 29th April 1668. There is a gap in the Record from 7th Sept. 1687 to 9th Nov. 1703. It is believed that some of the earlier Records of the Presbytery may yet exist in private hands.]

AUCHTERARDER AND ABERUTHVEN.

[These parishes were united about the beginning of the seventeenth century.

Auchterarder.—The church of Auchterarder, founded in 1200, was dedicated to St Kessog. It belonged to the Abbey of Inchaffray. The old parish church, now ruined, is a building over 80 feet in length. Beside it is St Kessog's Well. There was of old, in the town of Auchterarder, a chapel of St Mary. It has been rebuilt, and is now the parish church. Beside the old church a fair of St Kessog was long held on 10th March.

Aberuthven.—The church of Aberuthven was dedicated to St Catan, whose festival was held on 17th May. It belonged to the Abbey of Inchaffray, but later to the Abbey of Arbroath. The old church, now roofless, and partly ruined, is over 65 feet long.]

Commissioner for Robert Anriol, Earl of Kinnoull, in March, and ord. 12th May 1803; died of fever 31st Aug. 1834.

ROBERT YOUNG, son of James Y., writer, Edinburgh, and Magdalene 1843 Webster; educated at Univ. of St Andrews; licen. by Presb. of Dundee 4th April 1827; pres. by Thomas Robert, Earl of Kinnoull, 14th Sept. 1834, but owing to opposition from a majority of the parishioners, the Presb. refused to moderate a call. An action of Declarator was thereupon raised in the Court of Session by the patron and presentee against the Presb. This was decided in favour of the pursuers 8th March 1838, which decision on appeal was affirmed by the House of Lords 3rd May 1839. Y. having applied to the Presb. to be taken on trials, the Commission of Assembly prohibited them from proceeding. The General Assembly, 22nd May 1843, instructed Presbyteries to proceed to settlement of parishes according to the practice which prevailed before the passing of the Veto Act. Y. was accordingly ord. 4th Aug. 1843; died 15th Sept. 1865. The Auchterarder case was the real fons et origo of the Secession of 1843. He marr. MONZIE.

[A fair of St Laurence was held at Monzie, and it is believed that the parish church was dedicated to him. Monzie was a prebend of Dunblane. In September, on Our Lady Day in Harvest, a fair of St Mary was held here. In this parish are still to be seen the very scanty ruins of the collegiate church of St Mary at Innerpeffray. That church was built before 1342. Its collegiate foundation was granted by John, first Lord Drummond, in 1598. There are ancient burial-grounds in the parish of Monzie at Tomanbowie and at Stuck. In both there were chapels of old, but these have long since fallen down.]

RICHARD DUNCAN, M.A. (Edinburgh, 2nd July 1667); licen. by Alexander, Bishop of Edinburgh, 10th April 1673; pres. to Kinkell 14th July 1674, and by Marquess of Atholl to Trinity-Gask 5th June 1674; coll. by Bishop of Edinburgh for the Archbishop of St. Andrews 24th Oct. 1674; dep. between 13th July 1681 and 1st April 1682 for immorality; condemned to death for murdering his child, whose remains were found under a hearthstone in the house. Executed at Crieff soon after 6th June 1682, aged about 35; a reprieve arrived twenty minutes afterwards. This is believed to be the historical fact underlying the well-known popular rhyme, erroneously attributed to Little Dunkeld—

"O what a piece of work is man!

How like a god he does appear!

Till he has laid the last of his, then comes
That sleep the doleful picture of his end."

Tradition asserts that the precentor was accidentally drowned while trying to ford the Earn at Kinkell. The bell of the church for some reason, was sold, and not long since was found to be in possession of the church of Cockpen.—[P.C. Acts, 4th May 1682; *Sc. PRESBYTERY OF STIRLING

[The Presbytery Register of Stirling begins at 8th Aug. 1581, and is thus the earliest Record of the kind now existing. There are gaps in the Record from 19th May 1584 to 21st June 1586, from 15th Oct. to 20th Dec. 1615, from 24th July 1616 to 22nd Feb. 1627, from 2nd April 1640 to 21st Nov. 1654, and from 14th May 1688 to 14th April 1693. A volume, containing part of the Record awaiting, was extant on 16th Aug. 1665, but had gone amissing by the 2nd of May 1744. It is not now known to exist. It held the Minutes of Presbytery from 17th Dec. 1617 to 15th Sept. 1625. The Protester party in this Presbytery withdrew in 1651, and set up a Protester Presbytery of Stirling. No Record of its proceedings, however, is known to survive.]

AIRTH.

[The vicarage of Airth belonged to the Abbey of Holyrood. Its ancient parish church, now ruined, was dedicated to St Peter. It is about 80 feet long, and contains a number of interesting monuments. A mineral spring in the parish was called Our Lady's Well. A fair of St Peter was held at Airth.]

league Aug. 1645; called to a Presbyterian congregation, perhaps at Newry, in Province
of Ulster; trans. and adm. before 24th Dec.
1650. He joined the Protesters and was
dep. 30th July 1651, but still continued to exercise his ministerial duties; was one of those named by Cromwell and the Council, 8th Aug. 1654, for visiting the universities,

and taking care "that none but godly and able men be authorised to enjoy the livings appointed for the ministry in Scotland." He was arrested at Portpatrick in 1660 on his way to settle in a congregation in Ireland, to which he had been called; was imprisoned in Glasgow and afterwards in Edinburgh Tolbooth, by order of the Committee of Estates, who sequestered his stipend 25th Sept. that year. He was liberated 5th July 1661, on condition of leaving the kingdom, his life being spared on the intercession of Archbishop Sharp. He went to Holland, resided in Leyden, and died at Utrecht. He marr. Elizabeth, dangh. of Andrew Home of Prendergust, who petitioned Parliament during her husband's confinement, and had an Act on behalf of herself and her family 8th March 1661. JOHN AISSON, who had served the 1596 parish for a time, was desired as
min. after the death of Alexander Fargie. He seems to have preached at Tullibody from 1596 to 1598, but the difficulty of "reasonable provision" finally hastened the conjunction of the parishes.

ST NINIANS, FORMERLY ENGLAIS NINIAN.

[Called of old Englais Ninian. The church of this parish was dedicated to St Ninian. It belonged to the Abbey of Cambuskenneth. There is a Well of St Ninian in the parish. It was mainly within the bounds of St Ninians that the Battle of Bannockburn was fought in 1314. Here too, in 1448, took place a great part of the contest at the Battle of Sauchieburn. When King James III. fled from that field, his horse threw him at Milton in this parish, and there he was assassinated. In 1511 Matthew, Earl of Lennox, the Regent ruling for his grandson, James VI., fell in fight at Newhouse, within the bounds of St Ninians. In 1746 Prince Charles Edward's troops stored munitions in St Ninians Church. When compelled to retire, they blew up the building, of which the tower only escaped destruction. The church was rebuilt hard by on a new site, where it still stands apart from the tower. This parish contained of old four chapels, at St Ninian's Well, Skeoch, Cambusbarron, and the Kirk o' Muir. Near the chapel at the Kirk o' Muir is the Priests' Croft. Close to Stirling, but in St Ninians Parish, stood a House of the Black Friars. At

Buckieburn, within the bounds, there is a mission chapel.]

STIRLING.

THE ROOD KIRK.

[The fine parish church of the Holy Rood at Stirling was built in 1500, to replace the church of St Modan, which had been burned down. It is about 200 feet long, but is sadly marred internally by a wall which screens off the western part of the building. A Second Charge was secured for the parish of Stirling in 1607. In 1656 the church was divided into two parts, each of which was fitted up as a separate place of worship. In 1731 a Third Charge was founded. This led to the growth of a third congregation, and, in 1840, the North Church was built for the services of the Third Charge.

There is an early record of a church built at Stirling by St Monenna, but it is not likely that it was a stone building. In 1463, when James III. was King, the Hospital of St James was erected at the Stirling end of the bridge over the Forth. Near the bridge, somewhat later, was built a chapel of St Roque. In James IV.'s time Stirling acquired another hospital, which still exists. It attests the munificence of Robert Spital, the King's tailor. During the same reign, in 1494, a house of the Grey Friars, dedicated to St Modan, was established in the town. King James IV. lived much at Stirling, and it was he who set up one of its most notable foundations, that of the Collegiate Church of the Chapel Royal. It was dedicated to St Mary and St Michael, and was famed for its elaborate musical services. In the part of this parish that lies on the left bank of the Forth stand the ruins of St Mary's Augustinian Abbey of Camluskenneth. It was founded by King David I. in 1147, and had very wide possessions. Within its church there were altars of St Ninian and St Katherine. Of the Abbey buildings little now remains but the church tower. It is very complete. There is also an interesting monument erected by Queen Victoria to keep in mind her ancestors James III. and his Queen, Margaret of Denmark, who lie buried in the Abbey

Church. There were many altars and shrines in the Rood Kirk, and some of their names are well known. These include dedications to the Holy Trinity, St Mary, St Michael, St Anne, St Andrew, St James, St John the Baptist, St Ninian, St Salvator, St Peter, St Paul, St Laurence, St Katherine, St Modan, St Cuthbert, St Eloi, St Severinus, and St Aubert. In the Rood Kirk, on the 29th of July 1567, King James VI. was crowned, having then attained the age of thirteen months.

There were in this parish Wells of St Mary, St John, and St Thomas. Stirling held fairs on Ascension Day, Roodmas Day, and Our Lady Day in Harvest.]

May 1591. When preaching before the King in 1598 he exhorted him to beware "lest he drew on himself secret wrath by setting up manifest idolatry." Immediately after sermon his Majesty arose and "forbade him to meddle in these matters." He was a member of twelve out of fifteen Assemblies held prior to 1610; was named by Assembly of 1606 constant Moderator of Presbytery, but refused to accept. He drew up a Protest to Parliament against the introduction of Episcopacy 1st July 1606; was chosen Moderator of Conference at Falkland 15th June 1608; was offered a bishopric and pension by the King, but frequent attacks of disease broke down his constitution, and he died 31st March 1618. He marr. (1) Martha (died 13th Aug. 1601), daugh. of James Barron, Provost of Edinburgh, and had issue—James, served heir 9th Oct. 1618; Lillias, born 1590-1 (marr. HENRY GUTHRIE, M.A.; trans. from Guthrie; pres. by Charles I. 20th 1632 April, and adm. 13th May 1632; dep. by Commission of Assembly for malignancy 14th Nov. 1648; reponed by Synod 12th July 1655; became min. of Kilspindie 7th April 1656.

JAMES GUTHRIE, born about 1612, said to be son of Guthrie of that ilk; 1650 M.A.; regent in St Leonard's College, St Andrews; was one of those whom the Assembly, 16th Dec. 1638, found ready to supply vacancies; ord. to Lauder in 1642; was selected with three others to wait upon Charles I. at Newcastle in 1646 with a letter from the Assembly; preached before Parliament 10th Jan. 1649, and was thanked by it; app. a commissioner for visiting the Univs. of St Andrews and Edinburgh that year; trans. and adm. Nov. 1650; took an active and leading part in the business of the Church, and by a small majority in the Assembly got General, afterwards the Earl of Middleton, excommunicated, announcing the sentence from his own pulpit, notwithstanding an appeal by the King. He and Bennett, his colleague, were required by His Majesty and the Committee of Estates to repair to Perth, 19th Feb. 1651, to answer for preaching against the Public Resolutions agreed to by Church and State in order to a levy, but they refused; dep. by the Assembly, 30th July following, for having joined in the Protestation against the lawfulness of that Assembly. He and others holding similar views thereupon formed a separate Church under the protection of Cromwell. Along with others of the Protestant brethren, having met in Edinburgh to draw up a congratulatory address and supplication to Charles II., he was seized and imprisoned in Edinburgh Castle 23rd Aug. 1660. His stipend was sequestrated 25th Sept., and he was removed to the prison of Dundee 20th Oct., from thence to Stirling and again to Edinburgh, where he was tried before Parliament, 25th May 1661, found guilty of treason, sentenced to death 28th, hanged at the Cross of Edinburgh 1st June 1661. His head was placed on the Netherbow Port. The sentence of forfeiture was rescinded by Parliament 22nd July 1690, and his skull, after being a public spectacle for about twenty-eight years, was removed by Alexander Hamilton, then a student at the University, who afterwards succeeded to this charge. From his determined support of Presbyterian principles G. was named "sicker foot," the avowed leader of the Protesters, and their secretary and champion. He marr. NORTH, OR THIRD CHARGE.

EBENEZER ERSKINE, born Dryburgh, parish of Mertoun, Berwickshire, 22nd June (bapt. 21th July) 1689, fourth son of Henry E., min. of Chirnside [of the Erskines of Shielfield, Lauderdale, a direct descendant of Robert, third Lord E., who fell at Flodden], by his second wife, Margaret Halero; educated at Univ. of Edinburgh 1693-1702; M.A. (28th June 1697); tutor and chaplain at Leslie House, Fife, in the family of John, Earl of Rothes; licen. by Presb. of Kirkcaldy 11th Feb. 1703; ord. to Portmoak 22nd Sept. 1703. He joined with Boston and ten other ministers in defence of the Marrow doctrine, and signed a Representation to the General Assembly, 11th May 1721, against the Act of 1720, which had condemned the Marrow. For this "the twelve" were admonished by the Assembly, 21st May 1722. E. received calls to Burntisland in 1712, to Tulliallan in 1713, to Kirkcaldy in 1724, and to Kinross in 1728, but all were refused by the Church Courts; called to this charge 28th April, trans. and adm. 8th July 1731. He disapproved of an Act passed by the Assembly of 1732 anent the settlement of vacant charges, wherein the right of popular election was destroyed. As retiring Moderator of the Synod of Stirling, 10th Oct. 1732, he preached a sermon in which he maintained the invalidity of such an Act, as "wanting the authority of the Son of God." For so doing he was censured by the Synod. His appeal to the General Assembly, 11th May 1733, was dismissed, that Court homologating the action of the Synod and further rebuking E. Against this, he and three associates [William Wilson, Perth, Alexander Moneriff, Abernethy, and James Fisher, Kinclaven] protested. The Assembly, through a committee, endeavoured to persuade them to withdraw their Protest, and the four ministers were given till the meeting of the August Commission to make up their minds, the Commission being empowered to suspend them if they refused, or to pronounce even a higher censure. In August they were suspended, and at next Commission, 16th Nov., by the casting vote of the Moderator [John Gowdie, D.D.], a sentence virtually amounting to deposition was passed upon them. E. and his friends thereupon signed a formal act of secession. They met at Gairney Bridge, near Kinross, where on 6th Dec. they constituted themselves into an Associate Presbytery with full powers. They were afterwards joined by Erskine's brother Ralph, min. of Dunfermline, Thomas Mair, min. of Orwell, Thomas Nairn, min. of Abbotshall, and James Thomson, min. of Burntisland. Between 1734 and 1740 various healing measures were suggested, all of which were rejected. The obnoxious Act was declared no longer binding, and on 14th May 1734 the Assembly enjoined the Synod "to take the case of the seceders under consideration, and do therein as shall be found most expedient for restoring the peace and preserving the authority of the Church." The sentence against them was annulled 2nd July 1734, and the ministers were restored to their status, E. being re-elected Moderator of Synod. Every overture failing, they were finally deposed by the Assembly, 15th May 1740. E. preached on the Abbey Craig and in the fields till a meeting-house was erected. During the Rebellion of 1745 he headed two companies of Seceders against Prince Charles, and was thanked by the Duke of Cumberland. On the division in the Associate Church, 9th April 1747, upon the question of the Burgess Oath, E. adhered to the Bughers and was deposed by the anti-Burgher section, 4th Aug. 1748. He was Professor of Theology to the Burgher Synod 1747-9. He died 2nd June 1754, and was buried within his own church, in front of the pulpit [Erskine U.F. Church, built in 1826, in room of that of 1710, was placed further back from the resting-place of its founder, which is now enclosed in a small mausoleum in front]. A statue of E. stands in the cemetery on the Castlehill of Stirling. He marr. (1) 2nd Feb. 1704, Alison (died 31st Aug. 1720, aged 39), second daugh. of Alexander Turpie, writer, Leven, and Jean, daugh. of William Friar, merchant, Edinburgh, and had issue—Henry, born 6th Aug. 1705, died 8th June 1713; Jean, born 1706 (marr. CHAPEL ROYAL OF STIRLING.

[The Chapel Royal of Stirling was founded by Pope Alexander VI. at the request of James IV. in 1501 for the support of a Dean, Prebendaries, and other officials. In 1569, in place of the Dean and Prebendaries came the Ministers of the King's House. The office of Dean was revived by King James VI. and annexed to the Bishopric of Galloway in 1606, and the Chapel Royal transferred to Holyrood. This charge was disjoined from Galloway, annexed to the Bishopric of Dunblane 16th June 1621, and ratified by Act of Parliament 4th Aug. that year.]

JOHN DUNCANSON, min. of Stirling 1567 (q.v.); pres. 17th March 1567.

JOHN CRAIG, born 1512, said to have 1579 been the son of an Edinburgh citizen who fell at Flodden, and to be descended from the family of Craig of Craigton in Aberdeenshire; educated at St Andrews; M.A. (about 1528); became tutor in the family of Lord Dacre, Warden of the English Western March; joined the Dominican Order but was imprisoned on suspicion of heresy. On release, he went to England and thence to Rome. He obtained the position of Master of Novices at Bologna, and was employed in various missions on behalf of his Order in Italy and the Levant. Returning to Bologna he became rector of the Dominican College there, a post he held for several years. Through reading the Institutes of Calvin he again became inclined to the reformed doctrines, and on this being discovered, he was sent to the prison of the Inquisition and sentenced to be burnt at Rome on 20th Aug. 1559, but escaped with other prisoners during a riot on the death of Pope Paul IV. on 19th Aug. He proceeded to Vienna, where he preached as a Dominican, but his surrender having been demanded by the new Pope, he fled to England in 1560 and returned to Scotland in 1561. There he preached (in Latin) in the Magdalen Chapel in the Cowgate of Edinburgh. He became min. of the Canongate in 1561; trans. to St Giles after 18th June 1562, where he refused to publish the banns of marriage between Queen Mary and Bothwell, but subsequently did so, under protest that he "abhorred and distrusted that marriage"; trans. to Montrose in 1571; trans. to Aberdeen 6th Aug. 1573, but left, 14th Sept.

1579, to undertake this charge; was a member of twelve out of thirteen Assemblies, and Moderator of General Assembly 1st March 1570 and 24th Oct. 1576; was a commissioner for visiting the province of Aberdeen in 1575, and in 1576 one of five for that duty, having for his district "the laigh of Mar and Garioch with the Kirks of the Mearns beyond the Mounth on Deeside." He drew up the Confession of Faith which was subscribed by James VI., 2nd March 1580, and adopted by the nation; was elected Moderator of the General Assembly for the third time, 17th Oct. 1581. He was appointed in 1582 to make a collection of the Acts of Assembly, and in 1592 wrote an answer to an attack made on the Confession of Faith: neither of these was printed. He died 12th Dec. 1600. He marr. before 1574, Marion Snail or Snall, who died in 1630, and had issue—William, M.A., Professor of Divinity in Univ. of Samur, "grave, learned, retired, moderate, and without reproach," baptized 9th Oct. 1575, died "in the Blackfriars' Wynd," Edinburgh, Nov. 1616; Margaret (marr. 29th Nov. 1598, Robert Favelie, goldsmith). Publications—A Shorte Summe of the Whole Catechisme (Edinburgh, printed by Henry Charteris, 1581) [hardly any early Scottish book is rarer. The only two extant copies known are in the Advocates' Library, and in the possession of a member of the Gibson-Craig family]; Ane Form of Examination before the Communion (Edinburgh, 1591). He is believed to have been the translator of fifteen psalms which have the initials I.C. in the Metrical Psalms (Edinburgh, 1565), and the "second versions" of Psalms 102, 136, 143, and 145 are his. There is a portrait of C. in possession of Sir Henry Gibson-Craig, Bart., at Riccarton.—[Edin. Tests.; Laing MSS.; Hist. MS. Com., 167; *Selections from Wodrow's Biog. PRESBYTERY OF DUNBLANE

[The Register of this Court begins at 14th November 1616. Gaps occur in the Record from 9th April 1628 to 11th April 1648, and from 2nd October 1658 to 26th April 1698. There are also, on separate sheets, a few surviving scroll notes of the Presbytery's transactions. These are dated 17th April 1631, and 21st April and 5th June 1639.]

[The church of Aberfoyle belonged to the Abbey of Inchmahome. There is now in this parish a mission chapel at Kinlochard.]

ROBERT GRAHAME, pres. by James
1571 VI. 26th Aug., and entered in Nov.
1571.—[Reg. Min.]

WILLIAM STIRLING, son of Henry S.
1574 of Ardoeli; pres. to the parsonage of Aberfoyle and vicarage of Kilmadock,
with the manse in Dunblane, 27th Aug. 1571;
had also Port in the charge 1574; was one of three nominated by the Privy Council, 6th March 1589, for the maintenance of true
religion in the Stewartries of Strathern
and Menteith; removed to Strageith or Blackford in 1590; was app. by the Convention in Nov. 1592 to forward intelligence
from Dunblane regarding the practices of Papists for the subversion of religion; returned here in 1592; still min. in 1614. He marr. Geiles Bisset, and had issue—Helen (marr. Andrew Allan, min. of Kippen).—

Dec.*, clxvii., 71; Melvill's Autob.]

JOHN CRAIGENGELT, M.A.; adm.
1621 in 1621; trans. to Alloa in 1626.

JAMES KIRK, born 1609, son of John 1639 K., writer, Edinburgh; educated at Univ. of Edinburgh; M.A. (25th July 1629). His house, corn, books, and goods
having been destroyed by rebels, a subscription on his behalf was recommended by the Commission of Assembly and responded to by parishes in Lothian and Fife.

He died between 15th June and 6th July 1658. He spent his patrimony and his wife's estate in law proceedings regarding his charge against a strong party of "cruel and barbarous highlanders," and in educating
his family. He marr. Elizabeth Carcattell, who survived him, and had issue—James,
min. of Balaaghie; George, apprenticed
to Walter Gledstones, tailor, Edinburgh, 31st March 1658; Robert, min. of this parish; and other four sons.—[*Nisbett
Her.*, i., 429; Edin. Apprentice Reg.; *Prot.
Book of Mr A. Guthrie*, iv., 218.]

DANIEL MEVICAR [or BOYLE], son of 1660 Malcolm M., Inveraray; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (1650);
called in Dec. 1659 and May following;
ord. 17th Sept. 1660; died Dec. 1684, aged about 54.

ROBERT KIRK, born about 1611,
1635 seventh and youngest son of James
K. above mentioned; educated at
Univ. of Edinburgh (M.A., 19th July 1631)
and at St Andrews; ord. to Balquhadder 8th Nov. 1634; pres. by William, Earl of Menteith, 6th Feb., coll. in May, and adm.
9th June 1635; was Presb. Clerk 23rd
Oct. 1667 to 3rd April 1688; died 14th May 1692. [The tradition is that he was walking on a "fairy knowe" when he sank down
and disappeared.] His grave near the east end of the church has a stone with this inscription: "Robertus Kirk, A.M., Linguae Hiberniae Lumen." He marr. (1) Jan. 1670, Isabel (died 25th Dec. 1680, aged 25), daugh. of Sir Colin Campbell of Mochaster, and had issue—Colin, W.S., died 18th March 1725; William; (2) Margaret, daugh. of John Campbell of Glendaruel, and had issue—Robert, min. of Dornoch; Marjorie (marr. 2nd Dec. 1719, John Baillie, stabler, Edinburgh). Publications—Psalm Dhalibh an Meadachul (the first complete copy of the Scottish Psalter in Gaelic) (Dun-Edin, 1684). From his great knowledge of Gaelic he was sent to London in 1689 to superintend the printing of the Gaelic Bible (which he himself had written out in the Roman alphabet) for use in the Highlands of Scotland, containing the Old Testament by Bishop Bedell and the New Testament by William O'Donahull. To this he added a brief Gaelic vocabulary [6 pp.] (London, 1690) [reprinted with additions by Edward Lhuyd in Nicolas's Historical Library (London, 1702); The Secret Commonwealth, or an Essay on the Nature and Actions of the Subterraneous and (for the most part) Invisible People, heretofore going under the name of Elves, Fairies, and Fairies or the Lyke, and of the Low-Country Scots, as they are described by those who have the Second Sight, 1691 (this work apparently existed in MS. only until its publication in 1815, with Sir Walter Scott (not Robert Jamieson as frequently stated) for editor] (Edinburgh, 1815; new edition [edited by Andrew Lang], London, 1893).—[Dunblane Test.: Nichols's Hist., 429; Graham's Sketches of P. Hist., 251; Reid's Biblioth. Scot. Cell.; Trevelyan's Servant Book, 15th Aug. 1696; Scot. Hist. Soc. Trans., 1918-19; Maclean's Typographia Scotia-Gaelica, 318; *Dict. Ant. WILLIAM FISHER, M.A. (Glasgow, 1696 July 1696): was schoolmaster of Drymen 29th Dec. 1668; adm. to Dunoon after 2nd June 1669; trans. to Eastwood

before 6th April 1681; deserted his charge there in 1689; was app. (through the influence of Sir John Maxwell of Pollok, whom he had assisted when persecuted as a Presbyterian) to be domestic chaplain to the Duke of Montrose; intruded here in 1696; died 8th Feb. 1732, aged about 84, the last Episcopal minister who was permitted to hold a parochial charge in Scotland. He marr., and had issue—John.—[Glasgow Comm. Deeds, 27th Nov. 1689; Campbell's Eastwood, 70.]

JAMES RICHARDSON, educated at 1733 University of Glasgow; licen. by Presb. of Glasgow; called 7th Sept. 1732; adm. 4th Jan. 1733; died 13th May 1770; respected for his learning and stores of general information. He was unable to speak Gaelic, and having attempted to preach it once, was obliged to stop in the midst of his discourse. In 1732 the Presb. found Gaelic unnecessary for the parish. A Protestant association in Dublin presented him with a Bible in 1727 as an expression of their approbation of his sermon against Popery. He marr. 18th June 1740, Jean Burrell, a native of Northumberland, who died 28th April 1778, and had issue—William, Professor of Humanity, Univ. of Glasgow, born 1st Oct. 1743, died 3rd Nov. 1814. Publication—A Sermon against the Supremacy of the Pope of Rome (Glasgow, 1727).—[Woodrow's Anal., iii., 215, 251; Scots Mag., lxxxvi.]

[ARCHIBALD BRUCE, pres. by William, Duke of Montrose, Nov. 1770, but the moderation of the call was prevented by the riotous behaviour of the parishioners, and, on the case being taken to the General Assembly, the presentation was set aside, 30th May 1772, on account of the presentee's ignorance of Gaelic.]

JAMES DYMOCHE [or DIMMOCH], 1773 pres. by William, Duke of Montrose, Nov. 1772; ord. 13th May 1773. He acquired a sufficient knowledge of Gaelic after his presentation, but he dem. 16th May 1786; went to Jamaica, took orders in Episcopal Church, and was app. rector of St David's. He returned to Edinburgh after some years; died 31st Jan. 1815. He marr. 8th Jan. 1786, Helen, eldest daugh. of George Home, town clerk of Leith; she survived him, and marr. (2) 18th March 1818, Patrick M'Vicar, min. of Third Charge, Dundee.

PATRICK GRAHAM, born 1750, eldest son of Walter G., schoolmaster of 1787 Aberfoyle; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (1776); licen. by Presb. of Irvine 2nd Oct. 1783; pres. by William, Duke of Montrose, Nov. 1786; ord. 25th April 1787; D.D. (Glasgow, April 1795); died 4th Sept. 1835. He was a profound scholar, an able divine, an elegant writer, and eminent for his literary acquirements. In a note to Rob Roy, Scott speaks of him as one "whose urbanity in communicating information on the subject of national antiquities is scarce exceeded by the stores of legendary lore which he has accumulated." He was long a member of the General Assembly's committee for revising the Scriptures in Gaelic. He marr. 9th Aug. 1790, Catherine Sommers, Greenock, who died 2nd Dec. 1847, and had issue—Margaret Jane, born 23rd May 1791; Martha Harriet, born 28th April 1792 (marr. 6th Aug. 1838, James Macarthur, M.D., 95th Foot); Catherine Blair, born 13th July 1793; Williamina, born 30th April 1795, died 18th Dec. 1804; Robert Cunningham, his successor; Mary, born 15th Jan. 1800; John, born 15th Dec. 1801, died 5th March 1810; Patrick, born 3rd Oct. 1804, died 25th Feb. 1810; William, born 1st May 1806, died 25th Feb. 1810. Publications—The Reverence due to the Institutions of Nature and Providence, a sermon (Edinburgh, 1794); Sketches descriptive of Picturesque Scenery on the Southern Confines of Perthshire (Edinburgh, 1806, 1810, 1812); Essay on the Authenticity of the Poems of Ossian (Edinburgh, 1807); General View of the Agriculture of Stirlingshire (Edinburgh, 1812); General View of the Agriculture of Kinross and Clackmannan (Edinburgh, 1815); Account of the Parish, and its Zoology and Botany in Account of Port of Menteith (Sinclair's *Stat. 1922.

BALQUHIDDER.

[The church of this parish was dedicated to St Angus, who, of old, made Balquhiddel
the seat of his mission. The hillock on which he preached is still called Beannach Aonghais, "the blessing of Angus." Over his reputed burial-place was set the Glach Aonghais, on which for several centuries
the people stood to be married, in the hope of a special blessing. Balquhiddel Church was finely rebuilt by David Carnegie of Stronvar.]

DUNBLANE AND KILBRIDE.

[These parishes were united in the sixteenth century.

Dunblane.—From a very early date there was at Dunblane a Celtic abbey dedicated to St Blaen. About the middle of the twelfth century King David I. changed this old foundation into a bishopric. The tower of the church, though its height has since been raised, is built after the manner of that time. It may even perhaps have been part of the ancient monastery. For a while the Culdee monks were left in possession, subject to the Bishop's authority. In 1212 Cormac MacPhóil is named as their Prior. As time went on, the See became impoverished and its buildings grew ruinous. To bring back its prosperity, the Pope, in 1233, bestowed the bishopric on a man of energy, an Italian Black Friar. This Bishop was canonized at a later time, and is known as St Clement of Dunblane. It was he who cleared away the ancient monastery, keeping only the tower, and began, in or about 1240, the erection of a stately cathedral church. This good work his successors in the See worthily carried on. In 1560 the building was made the church of the parish, and such it remains. For a time in the seventeenth century it served again as a cathedral as well as a parish church. Within recent years, mainly through the munificence of one of the heritors, Mrs David Wallace of Glassingall, and her family, the church of Dunblane has been very finely restored. Unfortunately, somewhere about the beginning of the eighteenth century, the stately north and south porches of the edifice, having become ruinous, were taken down. Their restoration would very much enhance the dignity of this beautiful church. The building is over 210 feet long and fully 50 feet high. It contains some fine ancient carved woodwork. Fairs used to be held at Dunblane on Whitsunday, Hallowmas, and St Lawrence Day.

Kilbride.—The church of this parish was dedicated to St Bride.]
